PEACE TREATY OF 4 NATIONS, PLEA OF DUCE

Urged on Britain, Germany, Italy And France.

ROME PARLEY REVIVES HOPE

MacDonald, Ready to Move on to Paris, Is Pleased.

Rome, March 19 (U.P.).—Premier Benito Mussolini came forward tonight with a bold proposal that the four great European powers—Italy, France, Great Britain and Germany—discard old quarrels and sign a pact in a new spirit of peace and cooperation. Mussolini made his proposal for this new peace pact at a two-hour conference with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, at the British Embassy. He told the British leaders—who dramatically flew to Rome for these week-end conferences—that he was ready to accept the British arms readjustment scheme "in principle," and then offered his counterproposal.

Pleased With Results.

The treaty as suggested by the "iron man" of Fascist Italy coincided with MacDonald's arms plan on several major points, it was learned. The accord, which can be styled a "reformed Kellogg pact for Europe" outlawing war, would be known as a "four-power pact for the maintenance of European peace."

The following communication was issued after the conversations:

"After a full and exhaustive exchange of ideas on the general situation, the ministers examined the project for understanding of larger political questions, put forward by Premier Mussolini, with the object of securing the collaboration of the four big western powers in an effort to promote, in the spirit of the Kellogg pact and 'no force,' a declaration of a long period of peace in Europe and the world."

Prime Minister MacDonald later said: "I am glad to have spent this week-end with Premier Mussolini with such good results."

Mussolini said the principles enunciated in his pact coincide with the general lines of the MacDonald plan. The first portion of the Mussolini plan outlines the principle of the Kellogg pact, but offers also additional sanctions, or penalties, to be taken in case disagreement in the

2 "Ride" Victims Bodies Are Found

Effects on One Indicate That He Was Convict, Recently Paroled.

Bedford, N. Y., March 19 (A.P.).—A farmer driving to church today found two bodies, apparently dumped from an automobile, each with two bullets in the heart and one in the head.

Papers in their pockets indicated they were Joseph Callegari, a former convict, of Brooklyn, and Frank Russo, of Ozone Park, Long Island.

A parole card in Callegari's pocket showed he had been discharged from some New York State prison March 14. He also had several letters signed "Pop." Postmarked from Waynesboro, Pa. New York City authorities were asked to assist in the investigation of the double slaying.

Successor to Walsh Will Ignore Challenge of Helena Judge.

Senator-designate John E. Erickson, of Montana, today will ask the Senate to recognize him as the Democratic successor to the late Thomas J. Walsh, regardless of a challenge from Judge George M. Bourquin, of Helena, concerning his right to the seat.

Expressing confidence, Erickson informed newspapermen from his hotel room: "I am going to take the oath of office tomorrow if they will let me." He declined to comment on Bourquin's charge that he was not entitled to be sworn.

Democratic and Republican leaders alike joined in indicating there was little likelihood of consideration of Bourquin's contention that Erickson, only a few days ago Governor of Montana, resigned the gubernatorial seat in a trade with the then

Women Wets Plan Final Repeal Drive

Mrs. Nicoll Calls Meeting Here April 5; Asserts 31 States Safe.

New York, March 19 (A.P.).—Women repeal leaders throughout the United States will meet in Washington, D. C., April 5 and 6 to mobilize their forces for a final drive against the eighteenth amendment, it was announced here today.

The announcement, made by Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, acting national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, said the organization expected to lead in the task of obtaining ratification of the repeal resolution by the necessary 36 States and also would promote liquor control legislation in the States.

It added that ratification already was virtually assured in 31 of the States.

England Gathers Gold For Return to Standard

London, March 19 (U.P.).—The financial editor of the Sunday Express today said that the Bank of England is planning to amass 250,000,000 pounds sterling in gold, and then return to the gold standard.

He said the gold stock now on hand totaled 188,000,000 pounds sterling, as compared with 120,000,000 pounds on January 1.

7 DIE AS FLOOD OF OHIO RIVER BREAKS BANKS

Thousands of Acres Go Under Water After Heavy Rains.

SCORES OF FAMILIES DRIVEN FROM HOMES

Big Damage Is Reported From West Virginia to Indiana Line.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 19 (A.P.).—The worst flood since 1913 raged tonight through the Ohio River Valley all the way from West Virginia to Indiana, accompanied by seven deaths and property damage as thousands of acres of land were inundated.

Rising slowly, the rain-swollen river tonight routed scores of families in riverfront communities below Point Pleasant, W. Va., where it is joined by the Kanawha River.

Neighbors of stricken Huntington, W. Va., suburbs are helping in helping families evacuate their homes—many already filled with water and others threatened.

Families Flee to High Ground.

Reports from Point Pleasant said Main street was flooded to a depth of one foot. Some business houses were filled with water. Families in the lower sections there hurried to higher ground as their basements were flooded. A number are being cared for at Camp Conley, National Guard encampment nearby.

The City of Portsmouth, Ohio, was threatened as the swollen waters beat against a wall protecting the city, and the mayor issued a proclamation warning the residents to be ready to flee. All highways leading into the city were inundated.

Thirty-five city blocks in Newport, Ky., were under water and the Ohio River, 8 feet above flood stage, was still rising.

Adams, Pike, Jackson and Scioto Counties, Ohio, were virtually out from the outside, and the residents of nearby Greenvale, Ky., were abandoning their homes.

Rescues Made in Boats.

Hundreds of families in the Ohio Valley were driven from their homes, and many were marooned. Rescuers in boats worked feverishly to carry them to safety.

The water poured down the main street of Manchester, Ohio, sweeping into business houses and homes. Hardin, Youngs and Otway in Scioto County were under several inches of water.

Three men drowned in Covington, Ky., when a wall of water swept their automobile into a creek. At Lawrenceburg, Ind., the death of 14-year-old Charles Stephens was attributed indirectly to the flood conditions. He found a bottle adrift, drank from it, suffered convulsions and died.

At California, Ky., Gale Thrigh, 18, was killed when the skiff in which he and three other boys were cruising overturned near a water-logged power transformer.

Mrs. John Harrison, 40, and a daughter, Ailee, 7, were drowned.

Japanese Attack PENETRATES CHINA

Hattori's Brigade Seizes Key to Peiping Highway in Sudden Sweep.

Tokyo, Monday, March 20 (A.P.).—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Hsienfeng today said that Maj. Gen. Heijiro Hattori's brigade of Japanese infantrymen had made a lightning attack south of the Great Chinese Wall and had occupied Sahochiao, 9 miles southwest of the important Hsienfeng pass.

The operation was designed to end repeated Chinese counter-attacks at Hsienfeng, at which pass Chinese and Japanese troops for days have been engaged in bitter conflict, for the passageway controls a highway leading southwest to Peiping.

The reports of Gen. Hattori's foray beyond the Great Wall followed upon repeated reports that the Chinese feared such an incursion, if the Japanese retained their hold on the last pass in the wall, which forms the boundary between Jehol Province and north China proper.

The Japanese apparently had succeeded in taking—or keeping—Hsienfeng pass, since the Chinese were said by the Rengo correspondent to

Trawler Aground, Six Men Are Saved

Ship From Newport News, Laden With Fish, Runs Into Dense Fog.

Manteo, N. C., March 19 (A.P.).—Coast Guardsmen from the Penney's Hill station today removed Capt. Topping and the five members of the crew from the motor trawler Voyager, which was driven aground in a dense fog during the night by a heavy sea.

The Voyager, hailing from Newport News, Va., and laden with fish, grounded 6 miles north of Currituck Beach Lighthouse, within 500 yards of the Penney's Hill station.

Guardsmen here said a cutter was expected to attempt to float the fishing vessel at high water.

Deadline Extended by U. S. For Hoarded Gold's Return

$500,000 Rich Capital Man Withdrew Is Deposited Again.

Hoarded gold, amounting to $500,000, withdrawn by a local industrialist, was moved into Uncle Sam's coffers on Saturday, shrouded in the greatest secrecy. The Post learned last night at the Treasury Department.

Hundreds of afternoon shoppers passed Fifteenth and New York avenues northwest, without knowing such a treasure was being removed from the National Savings & Trust Co. to the vaults of the Treasury.

The irony of the hoarder's fear of losing his money is that he made a considerable part of his fortune by furnishing material for Government construction operations.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board wants the bankward rush of once-hoarded gold to continue for another week or more.

Without explanation, word was sent out by the board yesterday to each of its twelve districts that the deadline for sending to Washington the names of those who are believed to have hoarded gold had been moved back to March 27.

The original time limit for sending in the names of those who drew out large sums of the metal during the last two years—without redepositing it—expired last Friday at 3 p. m.

DISABLED SHIP SENDS FRANTIC CALL FOR HELP

Liner Attempts to Save Freighter in Peril Off Alaska.

STORM IN DARKNESS HAMPER RESCUERS

Canadian Seignior, Victim, Recently Purchased by Japanese Interests.

Seattle, March 19 (A.P.).—Her cargo shifted and listing badly the steel freighter Canada Seignior with 45 officers and men aboard, which left Grays Harbor March 2, called desperately for aid today in the stormy seas off the western tip of the Aleutian Islands while the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Russia, was holed in the vicinity but unable to render assistance because of dark and stormy weather.

Messages relayed to the Coast Guard headquarters from St. Paul Island said the big freighter, purchased recently by Japanese interests from the Canadian National Lines, sent out her first SOS at 8:40 a. m. today (Pacific standard time) and gave her position then as latitude 45 N., longitude 161.35 E.

Ship Implores Help.

At 10:38 a. m. the Coast Guard radio received a report that the Canadian Seignior had radioed the Empress of Russia to "hurry quickly" and told of the shifted cargo and heavy list.

Fifteen minutes later a message from the Empress of Russia was picked up here saying that she was unable to get the exact bearings of the stricken ship and a few minutes later another message said the Empress of Russia was unable to "render assistance because of heavy weather," but was standing by. The message did not say how far she was from the stricken vessel.

The Canadian Seignior was under charter for this trip to the Yamashita Shipping Co. Her entire crew, including officers, is Japanese, said William C. Rogers, general freight agent of the shipping company here.

SOS Sounded.

The disabled ship is of 5,757 gross tons, is 400 feet long and has a 52-foot beam. She was built in Montreal in 1919.

Messages received from St. Paul Island and Dutch Harbor by the Coast Guard were relayed from the stricken vessel by the Oregon Maru.

Harry H. Morgan Expires in London

Father of Lady Furness Former U. S. Consul at Hamburg.

London, March 19 (A.P.).—Harry Hays Morgan, former United States Consul at Hamburg, died today at the London home of his daughter, Lady Furness, wife of the British shipping magnate. He was 73.

In addition to Lady Furness, her sister, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, a brother, Harry Morgan Jr., and his wife were at the bedside. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Mr. Morgan also served as United States Consul General at Buenos Aires several years.

Bank Holds $50,000 STUNZ LIFE POLICY

$150,000 Indemnity Bond Is Expected Also to Lessen Amount of Loss.

The shortage in the accounts of the Park Savings Bank will be reduced by payment of a $50,000 life insurance policy on the life of Robert S. Stunz in addition to the anticipated payment of a $150,000 indemnity bond. The Post learned last night.

Agents of the U. S. Bureau of Investigation worked on the accounts all yesterday, but no authoritative information can be given as to the amount of the shortage until the audit has been completed. The discrepancy has been tentatively set at from $1,500,000 to $1,600,000, although Government experts say there is evidence that this figure will be diminished.

The life insurance policy on Stunz, who committed suicide last Tuesday, a few hours before the name of the conservator of the bank was made public, was paid for by the bank and has been in existence for several years.

This policy, it was authoritatively stated, has been in existence so long that if there was a suicide clause in the policy—which generally voids a policy if there is self-destruction of the insured within a year—the clause

5 of Family Drown In Motor Accident

Louisiana Tragedy Occurs When Auto Plunges From Ferryboat.

New Orleans, La., March 19 (A.P.).—Five members of a New Orleans family were drowned today when their automobile plunged off the ferry at Houllonville, La., near here, into the Terrebonne River.

The dead: Mrs. Olivia Rousseau, Miss Estelle Rousseau, sister-in-law of Mrs. Rousseau, and the three Rousseau children, June, Muriel and Rodney.

Glovius Rousseau, husband of the dead woman, and his sister, Mrs. Corinne Rousseau Koepf, were saved when they were pulled from the water by the operator of the ferry. The five bodies were recovered. Witnesses said Mrs. Rousseau drove her automobile down the ferry landing and onto the boat, and was apparently unable to stop it.

Finance Ministry Lends Millions to Keep Big Institutions Open.

Vienna (Monday), March 20 (A.P.).—Drastic measures to restore the liquidity of Austria's big banks were announced early today in the government communiqué. The statement was issued after the cabinet had met in an almost continuous session since 11 a. m. Saturday.

The decrees, based on war emergency laws, will authorize the finance minister to lend 140,000,000 schillings (currently about $19,000,000) and the national bank to lend 40,000,000 schillings (about $5,600,000) to an "institute for revision and trusteeship." This institute will, in turn, lend funds to banks now embarrassed by the inability of corporations and communities, to which they lent money, to meet interest charges. The communiqué denounces as "entirely unfounded" reports that an Austrian bank is in danger of collapse.

3 DISTRICT OFFICERS, EN ROUTE TO CAPITAL, DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

Craft Takes Fire In Wreck Near Petersburg.

ON WAY HERE FROM SOUTH

Maj. Willis, His Son and Maj. Parker Are Victims.

Three Washington Army officers, a father, a son and a friend, were killed yesterday afternoon when the transport airplane in which they were flying to the Capital from Fayetteville, N. C., crashed and burned near Petersburg, Va.

The dead officers are Maj. James A. Willis, judge advocate general's department, of 1824 Ontario place northwest; his son, First Lieut. James A. Willis, Jr., Air Corps, pilot of the plane, who was on duty here as an aid at the White House, and Maj. John A. Parker, judge advocate general's department, of 1841 Columbia road northwest.

The accident occurred as the three officers were returning here to their homes from a trip to Spartanburg, S. C., where they had flown last Friday on official business, and a visit to Maj. and Lieut. Willis' relatives.

Cause Not Determined.

Leaving Pope Field, Fayetteville, at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, they were expected to arrive at Bolling Field here late in the afternoon. The plane burned following the accident, charring the bodies of Maj. Willis and Maj. Parker beyond recognition. Lieut. Willis, instantly killed by the impact, was thrown 300 feet from the wreckage. The cause of the accident could not be determined, but it was evident that some bad weather had been encountered. The plane was an all-metal, low-wing, five-passenger, single-engine transport, and had been in use at Bolling Field for some time.

Word of the accident reached Bolling Field too late for a plane to be dispatched from there to investigate the crash, which occurred 5 miles north of Petersburg.

Arrive at Scene.

The bodies of the two Army majors were taken from the burning plane by R. P. Slythe, of 1473 Irving street northwest, and his brother, Thomas Slythe, of Camden, N. J., who

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Disappointed When Heavy Fog Spoils View.

Luray, Va., March 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made a trip into Virginia today to visit the celebrated Luray Caverns.

Fog hung over the mountains spoiled the view of the beautiful Blue Ridge scenery, and Mrs. Roosevelt said she was keenly disappointed.

With her were Col. Louis M. Howe and Stephen Early, secretaries to the President. They had lunch at Minalyn before visiting the caverns.

Drastic Step Taken For Austria Banks

ROOSEVELT TO RUSH ECONOMIC SAVING

Budget Act Is Expected to Start Swinging in Next Few Days.

(Associated Press.) President Roosevelt expects to begin wielding the economy act just given him by Congress before the end of the month.

He hopes to top off $500,000,000 in expenditures as the big step toward balancing the budget, which he regards as vital to the other economic legislative proposals he is forwarding to Congress shortly.

The economy program is to include savings of about $200,000,000 in reduced veterans compensation, $100,000,000 in lowered salaries, and $100,000,000 through Government reorganization.

In addition, the President is counting on about $125,000,000 new revenue from the beer legislation and $150,000,000 from a renewal of the gasoline levy.

With this prospective $775,000,000 dent in the Federal deficit, the President confidently expects a permanent recovery program, including a gigantic public works employment program and railroad and banking reorganization.

He will send, meanwhile, an emergency employment proposal to Congress this week, aimed at giving 200,000 men jobs in a vast reforestation project. Marking this measure as "urgent," the President hopes to have Congress finish work on the emergency phase of his program before the end of the week.

An entire new system of Government salaries and veterans' allowances is being framed by his aids and will be ready for him within two or three days. He intends to put it into effect in all probability by the first of April. With the wheels of the executive and legislative branches of the new Government humming, the President "new deal" program with almost unprecedented speed. Mr. Roosevelt relaxed yesterday for about the first time in his two weeks at the White House.

Overton Election Probe Nears End

Early Wind-Up Predicted, With Senate Ouster Held Unlikely.

(Associated Press.) An early wind-up was predicted yesterday for the senatorial investigation into Louisiana's political affairs involving Senator Huey P. Long, the State's self-styled "kingfish," and resulting already in reams of pyrotechnic testimony. There may be some further activity, but the consensus on Capitol Hill yesterday was that the special Committee, which inquired into 1932 Louisiana Democratic senatorial primary, is about ready to wind up its work.

Senators expect no action will be taken toward ousting Senator John H. Overton, who, while a member of the House, defeated former Senator Edwin S. Brundage for the Democratic nomination which is tantamount in the State to election. Three questions will be taken up by the committee at a session today, called on Saturday by Chairman Brundage. The first question, which succeeded the late Senator Robert H. Howell, of Nebraska, a Republican, as pilot.

THREE OFFICERS DIE AS PLANE CRASHES

arrived at the scene a few minutes after the plane crashed. They were on their way from Petersburg to Camden, N. J.

The plane fell about 300 feet off U. S. Highway No. 1, the Sylva Brothers told The Post last night.

"When we stopped, the plane had been down about fifteen minutes, and everybody was standing around watching it burn," Thomas Sylva said.

Called for help, "My brother and I called for help and began pulling at the fuselage around the forward cockpit, where two of the bodies were. We succeeded in pulling them out, but the men were already dead. A third man, evidently the pilot, was lying about 300 feet from the plane.

He was burned about the right side of his body and his head had been crushed, crashed into the ground. It looked to us as though the plane started to burn in the air and the pilot tried to land in this small field beside the road," Mr. Sylva said.

Aid to White House.

Lieut. Willis, in charge of the ship at the time of the crash, had been on duty here since the Hoover administration as an aid to the White House. He also was stationed at Bolling Field, where he served as assistant operations officer. He was 30 years old and was a native of South Carolina. He was unmarried and lived at the field.

Mrs. Willis came to Washington last summer from San Antonio, Tex., where he had been detailed as judge advocate of the Eighth Corps Area. He was 55 years old. He was assigned here as legislative contact officer in the judge advocate general's office. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Miss Margaret Willis, 27 years old.

Native of Charlotte.

Mrs. Parker was a native of Charlotte, N. C., and was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1906. He was also 55 years old. During the war he went overseas in the judge advocate general's department, and since then had served in that branch of the service. He came here from Panama last summer. He is survived by his wife.

The bodies will be brought to Washington today. Arrangements will be made for burial in Arlington.

Bolling Field officials were at a loss to explain the accident. Lieut. Willis was known as an expert pilot, having been graduated from the Army primary and advanced flying schools. One other plane of the same type in which the accident occurred is now in use at Bolling Field.

Tobacco Growers Ban Children.

Roosevelt Shows His Skill In Making Congress Act

Methods of Leadership Have Amazed Nation Used to Long-Drawn-Out Legislation; Quick, Dramatic Moves Key to His System.

(United Press.) President Roosevelt has revealed himself to hard-boiled and cynical leaders of both parties here as an astute political general, keen, quick-witted, capable of meeting them on their own ground.

Not least among the qualities the new President has displayed in a hectic two weeks is the political skill which forced Congress to enact in seven days a program of unprecedented magnitude that ordinarily would have required months.

Nothing quite like the way Congress has followed his leadership has been seen here in years. Washington, accustomed to a Congress that crawls along sluggishly, was delighted as that body sprang under the President's command and waited eagerly for the next move.

President Roosevelt, it must be conceded, is aided generously in dealing with Congress by the emergency, but other Presidents have faced emergencies and have not had the cooperation that Congress has given him. He also has a commanding majority in Congress. But so have other Presidents.

The essence of his method is a series of well-timed dramatic acts, quickly executed and holding an element of surprise. He has kept Congress and the country guessing and the act in each case has fulfilled the anticipation.

Overly, he dangled over Congress the prospect of a recess after just one or two more measures, and Congress reacted quickly. Skillfully, he placed bills that were likely to arouse most antagonism first, while the enthusiasm generated by the change of administration still was warm. Thus he moved through the banking bill and the measure authorizing him to cut deeply into expenditures for veterans. Then, unexpectedly, he moved banking papers from the front page of the newspaper and the public mind by a sudden call for beer. That was something for which the public had been waiting, but was beginning to doubt, Congress promptly began to make it a reality.

Now he has disclosed he has a comprehensive economic program, dispelling doubts on this point, and Congress is ready to take it, with emergency measures out of the way. Congress now will proceed in a more leisurely way, but any hint of delay is sure to bring one of his pointed and brief messages that have served thus far to electrify the national legislature into action.

The President takes his leaders into his confidence, smilingly persuasive. Then he talks over their heads to the people. Nothing perhaps has been so refreshing, both to Congress and the Nation, as the brief message he sends to the Capitol—punchy, pithy and clear. When he asked for beer, he merely asked for beer, without the use of extra words. Twenty-two words was sufficient.

Accompanying the message, handed out to his leaders, is the draft of the bill. The path is made very plain.

The President has a trump card that he has used most effectively. It explains why Democrats hop quickly on the bandwagon.

This patronage. He has not yet named appointees to a thousand and one jobs which Congress members are seeking for their political henchmen. So Congressmen have to play ball with the President. They get his heads while he gets his program through Congress. A Congressman satisfied, with the jobs all doled out, is more likely to jump off the reservation. Expectantly waiting, he is likely to behave.

MEMBER OF HOUSE RAPS DRUNK RUMOR

Cannon, Reputed Participant in Fight, Denies Charge in Paper.

(Associated Press.) Representative Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, who was reported to have engaged in a sanguinary fist fight several days ago with a fellow Missourian, Representative Romjue, yesterday issued a statement denying a "rumor reported by a St. Louis paper that I was drinking last week."

Both Cannon and Romjue have declined to comment upon their reported tussle in a corridor of the House Office Building, nor would either discuss the cause of their differences. Cannon said yesterday issued his statement without comment. It follows in full:

"In response to the rumor reported by a St. Louis paper that I was drinking last week, I will say that I am a teetotaler.

"I have never been drunk in my life and have never taken a drop of liquor in the twenty years I have been in Washington. I have no objection to anyone else taking a drink if they want it but all who know me in Washington or Missouri know I never use it."

"As a matter of fact I was on the floor of the House every day last week participating in the proceedings and a part of the time presiding as Speaker pro tempore."

"I came in personal contact with practically all the members and not one of them will countenance the innuendo carried by this newspaper report."

In handing out his statement, Cannon asked that it be given wide circulation.

Representative Lundeen, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, told of the fight between the two Missouri Democrats last week.

He said he separated the two men when he found them tussling together. Cannon was on the House floor on the day after the reported battle, but Romjue was confined to his hotel room. His secretary reported that he was ill.

Man Dies as Stunt Axiatrix Crashes

Betty Lund Steele's Jaw Is Broken; Newspaperman Killed, Another Hurt.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 19 (A.P.)—Ullrich Forrester, 26, employee of the Knoxville Journal, was fatally injured today as a plane piloted by Betty Lund Steele, noted stunt flier, crashed near McGhee-Tyson Airport.

Mrs. Steele suffered fractured jaw and possible internal injuries. Wallace Boulineau, another passenger, was slightly hurt. Forrester died of a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Mrs. Steele had just taken off with her two passengers. Witnesses said that when she had gained an altitude of about 150 to 200 feet the plane began sputtering and died. The ship crashed into an embankment along a roadside.

Mrs. Steele is the former wife of Freddie Lund, flier, who was killed at Lexington, Ky., about two years ago.

Goemboes Makes Striking Comment on British Disarming Plan.

Budapest, Hungary, March 19 (A.P.)—Hungary wants peace, not adventure, Premier Jozsef Goemboes said today in commenting on Premier MacDonald's disarmament plan, recently announced at Geneva.

"War" is the premier asked. "To whom would it occur, scarcely a decade and a half after the World War, to resort again to this political weapon?"

"Such a person must either be ignorant of what war means or does not recognize the consequences of war, or else he is so unscrupulous that he deserves to be struck dead."

Labor Officials Sign Invitation to Meeting to Set Up Economic Program.

(Associated Press.) Emil Rieve, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, announced yesterday that a call signed by 50 officials of recognized labor and responsible labor groups had gone out for the "working people of the Nation to send delegates to a new continental congress" to be held in Washington May 6 and 7.

Rieve said that virtually all the labor leaders signing the appeal were heads of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Norman Thomas has signed, as Socialist, he said, "and it is expected the Socialist party will join officially in the continental movement."

The call said in part: "On Saturday and Sunday, May 6 and 7, representatives of farm and labor organizations will assemble at the National Capital in a new continental congress for economic reconstruction. Here we will draw up a program to right the grievous wrongs we have suffered, and set up a national council of the working people in city, State and Nation to insure its realization."

"Whether this bill will be presented by a picked delegation or will be part of a march to the entire congress to the White House," he said, "is to be decided later."

Four-Power Peace Plan Renews Hope

Paris Awaits Details With Interest; Cabinet Will Confer Today.

Paris, March 19 (A.P.)—The four-power peace plan discussed at Rome by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, and Premier Mussolini, of Italy, brought to government circles a hope of real progress. A pronouncement on the plan, however, awaits consideration at a cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Mr. MacDonald discussed his ideas with Premier Edouard Daladier at Geneva, so French officials assumed that the plan, however modified, would be the basis of the new peace plan.

French officials understand it. Duce's proposed group as a likely nucleus for a rejuvenated League of Nations.

Several Reservations.

In accepting this five-year arms plan Mussolini made several reservations, especially relating to the number of troops for the colonies. While agreeing to Italy's home army of 300,000, he may ask for an increased allowance in colonial troops, set at 50,000 men.

Mussolini made the reservations to Italian military experts could examine the situation and give him a full report. Otherwise, he welcomed the plan as a concrete effort toward peace.

Both premiers were convinced that Europe is at the crossroads—either peace leading to peace, the other to war. MacDonald, in a message to the press, said: "My hope is that the Geneva and the contacts which I had with representatives of all countries of the world convinced me more than ever of the gravity of the problems before us. We have no time to lose. Peace must be organized soundly and be really organized."

Lunches With King.

MacDonald spent the morning lightening. He visited the exposition of the Fascist revolution and museums and was escorted through the Quirinal Palace before having lunch as a guest of King Victor Emmanuel.

Prime Minister MacDonald and Sir John announced they would proceed to Paris tomorrow, carrying the last of the treaty project, it is Premier Daladier there. Copies also were distributed to the French and German Ambassadors in Rome.

CONGRESS RESUMES SPEEDY PACE TODAY

Economy and Beer Measures Are Expected to Reach President by Dark.

(Associated Press.) Congress resumes today the speedy pace set by the Roosevelt administration to put the finishing touches to budget balancing, beer and economy legislation before turning, in a more deliberate mood, to agriculture and State bank relief proposals.

Refreshed from a week-end respite after eight intensive action-filled legislative days of the extra session, Congress expects to send both the economy and beer bills to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature before tonight.

Senate and House Democratic leaders anticipated no difficulty in the adjustment of differences between the two branches on the Cullen beer bill. Only the signature of Vice President Garner remains to complete the congressional action on the $500,000,000 economy measure. The Vice President must sign the bill while the Senate is in session.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrnes, Tennessee, Democratic floor leader, predicted yesterday a compromise on the beer measure that would be satisfactory to Congress and to President Roosevelt. House conferees already have been appointed. Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he would ask for the appointment of Senate conferees today as soon as that branch meets.

It is planned to hold an informal meeting of the conferees earlier in the day, in a move to reach a tentative agreement on the Senate amendments reducing the alcoholic content of the beer bill from 3.2 to 3.05 per cent; legalizing wine of 3.08 per cent and barring sale to persons under 16 years of age. The measure went on record against all three.

Indications are that the House may recede from the higher alcoholic content and the Senate from the lower one. The beer measure, which would be agreed upon by the conferees, is expected to be signed by the President tomorrow night.

This would mean that beer would become legalized on April 4, in States not having prohibition laws. The bill, it is estimated, will yield from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 annually from the Federal tax of 83 a barrel.

Turkey Uncertain On Arms Program

Limitation on Airplanes Is Called Too Low in Istanbul.

Istanbul, March 18 (A.P.)—Turkey's first reaction to the new disarmament plan proposed at Geneva last week by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain is one of uncertainty.

An official bulletin from the capital today said that information so far received did not reveal what Mr. MacDonald has of a new Turkey, but that the nation was definitely opposed to plans for limitations on her armaments.

The number of airplanes fixed by the plan is unduly low for Turkey compared with the number assigned to other nations of similar rank, and considered by the Turkish government as a neutral power," the bulletin concludes.

MUSSOLINI OFFERS NEW PLAN OF PEACE future is likely to lead to armed conflict.

To Get Right of Way.

The ministers at the conference recognized that inasmuch as MacDonald's arms plan broadly corresponded to Mussolini's peace scheme, the Mussolini plan will be given the right of way and will become the basis for the new peace plan.

It was understood here that Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, and Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, would be invited to Rome shortly, for similar discussions, at which time the four-power peace plan would be submitted to them for approval.

Both Mussolini and MacDonald were anxious that the pact be pushed with all speed, and a new era of peace under the "Mussolini pact," or the "treaty of Rome."

The British arms scheme to which Mussolini agreed, with reservations, would limit the number of British leaders, would limit navies, armies, air forces, tanks and weapons. It would provide a holiday in capital ship construction and set definite limits on the strength of continental European armies, including an army of 200,000 for Germany—double the size allowed her under the Versailles treaty.

Nuptial Fee Abolition Urged to Assist Poor

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 19 (U.P.)—Gov. James H. Berrey today recommended to the island Legislature that the fee of $1 for a marriage license be abolished because under present economic conditions many poor people can not pay the fee.

"Priests and ministers report that in many cases not only do they perform the marriage ceremony free of charge, but that they also have to pay all or a portion of the license fee," the governor said.

17 STATES READY FOR REPEAL VOTE

Shouse Sees Machinery Set Up by 40 Legislatures Within Few Weeks.

(Associated Press.) J. J. Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, reported yesterday in a statement that Legislatures in 17 States had completed "machinery necessary for conventions to consider repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

"Repeal is on the way," he said. "We believe that provisions for conventions to consider repeal will have been made by approximately 40 Legislatures within the next few weeks."

Shouse said seven States had arranged for the delegates to be selected by the State at large in popular elections, asserting this provided the soundest test of sentiment. They were listed as Idaho, New Mexico, Ohio, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Shouse maintained "We do not despair of action this year, even in North Dakota, where the Legislature was adjourned without the Senate having acted on a House bill for a convention to consider repeal."

Survey of Action.

Shouse accompanied his statement by a survey of action thus far for repeal conventions in the States.

The survey included: Alabama, 116 delegates, all to be bound by result of State-wide referendum on repeal, July 1.

Arkansas: One delegate from each of the 75 counties to be chosen at special election, July 18, for a convention, August 1.

Idaho: Twenty-one delegates at large with the governor to fix the date of election to a convention 28 days afterward.

Indiana: One delegate for each county and one additional for each 10,000 population with the governor to fix election date and with a convention 30 days after.

Michigan: One hundred delegates to be nominated from legislative districts, with district of the governor to fix election date and with a convention 30 days after.

Montana: Delegates selected on basis of legislative districts, with governor to fix election date and convention date.

New Mexico: Three delegates to be chosen at election September 19, with the governor fixing convention date, with district of the governor to fix election date and with a convention 30 days after.

New Jersey: Two hundred and twenty delegates, 64 at large, to be chosen at the spring primary, for a convention June 5.

Ohio: Fifty-two delegates at large, with the governor fixing election date and a convention to follow 28 days after.

Oregon: Delegates elected on basis of 1 to every 10,000 population in each county at a State-wide election June 21 with the governor to fix a convention date.

South Dakota: One hundred and three delegates from legislative districts, with candidates to be nominated at a primary in 1934 and vote on the November general election in 1934, with a convention at Pierre, January 17, 1935.

21 Delegates at Large.

Utah: Twenty-one delegates at large with the governor to fix a convention date and a convention to follow 28 days thereafter.

Vermont: Ten delegates at large, with the governor to fix a date for an election and convention.

Washington: One hundred and forty-five delegates chosen from legislative districts, with the governor to fix election date and convention date.

West Virginia: Republican and Democratic State executive committees to name state of twenty delegates each, ten for, ten against, to be voted on June 27, with a convention July 1.

Wisconsin: Fifteen delegates at large, with an election April 4 and a convention April 28.

Wyoming: President conventions to choose delegates to county convention to be held May 18. At these conventions delegates will be chosen on basis of one for each county and one additional for each 5,000 population, with a convention May 28.

REGULATIONS EASED ON UNOPENED BANKS

way affect any right created by regulation number 7 nor limit or restrict any payment thereby authorized.

(Regulation number 7 provides for reopening of new accounts to be placed in trust for 100 per cent withdrawal.)

"Any right of authorize withdrawal or payment under the terms of this regulation shall terminate upon the appointment of any conservator, receiver or other appropriate State official taking charge of the affairs of such banking institutions."

At the same time Secretary Woodin issued a regulation declaring that with the close of business last Saturday Treasury regulations six and ten, as amended, shall be without force or effect.

The regulations specified concern withdrawals for the transportation of food and feed products, for the meeting of pay rolls and for the necessities of life.

It was explained unofficially that these regulations were repealed in order to conserve the assets of banks closed or under conservatorship. Officially, it was said, that with the number of banks now open sufficient funds are available to meet pay rolls and provide for the necessities of life.

FARM AND PROGRAM FACES AMENDMENT

Congressional Sentiment Is Sharply Divided Upon Relief Measure.

(Associated Press.) President Roosevelt's farm relief program last night faced a storm of amendments as Congress prepared to devote much of the week to considering the proposal through which the United States, under which the agricultural prices back to prewar levels.

A wide variance of views by congressional leaders on farm legislation, however, virtually has shut out the prospect of a quick and unanimous agreement such as that afforded other emergency proposals put forward by Mr. Roosevelt.

A bitter attack upon the administration's program for holding "one hope for success" was launched last night by a four-man special committee of the American Cotton Shippers Association.

Propaganda Experts.

Following a series of conferences at a hotel here, the committee issued a lengthy statement, declaring that the measure, as drafted, was "a cotton provision of the administration bill were 'far from being experienced in the handling and distribution of cotton.'"

"The statement, declared chiefly, the statement said, 'in the preparation of propaganda and in political methods necessary to keep themselves in good salaries from farm organizations and, indirectly, from the United States Treasury.'"

The statement was signed by T. P. Bush, of Waco, Tex.; J. W. Garrow, of Dallas, Tex.; C. W. Butler, of Memphis, and Dameron H. Williams, of Gastonia, N. C. They mentioned no names of those who referred to.

Borah for Repealing.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, gave the following statement orally to newspapermen:

"I was greatly in hope that the administration farm program would include some plan for refinancing the farmer, who owes $12,000,000,000 upon which he pays an average rate of interest from 7 to 8 per cent."

"I am like to see something come out of the committee on that phase of the situation. It is the most vital part of the farm question as I see it. The farmer can not pay that rate of interest even in normal times."

Women Drys See Beer "Revolution"

20 States to Take Part in Uprising Against Repeal, They Say.

(Associated Press.) On the eve of probable enactment of the beer bill by Congress today, two women prohibition leaders said they intended to lead a "revolution" against it in the States.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, declared a "revolution" already was "under way in 20 States." She asserted that the beer bill now before Congress would "nullify the eighteenth amendment."

Mrs. F. L. Johnson, vice chairman of the same organization, reported she had been holding a series of meetings with women in 24 States and had found that "the hypnotic hysteria superinduced largely by highly paid brewery propaganda, prior to the passage of the bill, has been in dishonor; then our materially glorious twentieth century will be an appropriation, a stench in the nostrils of those who are to come."

BANK HOLDS $50,000 STUNZ LIFE POLICY

would have become inoperative long ago.

Decision to insure the life of Stunz was made by the Board of Directors several years ago when one of the board suggested that if anything happened to him it would be difficult to replace him. They considered him the most valuable man in the institution. The policy was then written to the amount of $50,000.

Richard L. Hargreaves, who was appointed conservator of the bank, is understood to have called upon the bonding company to indemnify the bank to the amount of its bond, which is $150,000. There was no definite information forthcoming last night.

Those who had been in close association with the bank's affairs said last night it is incredible that Stunz could be defaulted to the extent of $150,000 without detection.

Before he killed himself, it is understood from reliable sources, Stunz confided to a few friends that there was a few friends of $50,000 at the bank. If the shortage does not exceed this amount, there was a general belief among those who were acquainted with the bank's operations that this sum could be repaid to depositors.

The payment of the $50,000 policy, plus the payment of the $150,000, plus the sale of unencumbered assets held by the bank, would be sufficient to offset the shortage not exceeding $500,000, it was said.

and redeposited it when threatened with exposure.

Less than two weeks before President Roosevelt declared the bank holiday this man went to a local bank and tried to withdraw $500,000 in gold. The bank refused to give him gold, but gave him currency.

Without losing any time, he went directly to the Treasury and remitted the currency for gold

Wife Slayer Kills Self Before Police

Search of Car Reveals Body Chopped in 14 Pieces and Suicide Follows.

Cincinnati, March 19 (A.P.)—The body of a woman, chopped into fourteen pieces, was discovered in an automobile here today and shortly afterward her husband committed suicide after battling officers.

Police said the couple was identified as Charles D. Evans, 50, a real estate dealer, and Ellen J. Evans, 42, of Indianapolis.

Police found a note from an attorney instructing Evans to pay his wife $25 alimony every two weeks. When asked if he killed the woman, Evans replied affirmatively, adding, "she tried to shoot me."

"I Killed a Hog."

The woman's body was discovered when police stopped Evans because his automobile bore a 1932 license plate. He became nervous, and thinking he might be a liquor runner, Officer Eimer Joyce lifted a tarpaulin in the back of the car. Under it were a wash boiler and numerous cooking utensils.

Two other officers came up as Joyce lifted the lid of one of the utensils and felt flesh inside.

"What is this?" asked Joyce.

"A ham," Evans replied. "I killed a hog."

"Where is your wife?" the officer persisted.

"In Indianapolis," came the reply, and then he drew from his pocket a safety razor blade, cut his wrist and began slashing at his throat.

Crowd Sees Battle.

Two of the officers shot at his arm, trying to stop him. The battle grew worse, with Evans, a powerful 285-pound man, holding the officers off with one hand and slashing at his throat with the other.

A large crowd gathered as the battle continued. Finally the officers began pleading with Evans to desist in his efforts to commit suicide.

Evans replied by offering them a roll of bills, $152, saying "give this to my mother."

Then he drew back, snarled and drove the razor blade into his jugular vein. He sank to the ground and died almost immediately.

BARRICADED COUPLE IS FELL BY POSSE

Man and Wife Are Wounded; Hid Selves in Barn and Slew Passer-By.

Meridian, Miss., March 19 (A.P.)—Bullets flew today intermittently in a three-hour siege laid by officers against a man who fired on passers-by from a pit under a barn near Walnut Grove, Miss., and after the battle the count showed one man dead and three other persons wounded.

The battle occurred at the home of a man who, officers said, was named Lott. They said Lott hid himself in a pit under a barn, with his wife, and began firing at passers-by with a rifle.

Dempsey Slade was killed as he was walking past the spot with W. B. Thomas, a rural mail carrier, who was wounded and his body lay in the road for more than an hour before rescuers could drag him out of range.

W. B. Thomas, a rural mail carrier, was fired on as he passed in his automobile, but the bullet went wide.

A posse organized by Sheriff W. W. Scrivner of Lee County finally closed in on the barn and captured the man and his wife.

The sheriff reported that he and his deputies were forced to shoot in self-defense, and as a result Lott and his wife were wounded.

Versa City Council Suspended.

Versa, Okla., March 19 (A.P.)—The Versa City municipal council has been suspended by the local legislature. Its members have been cited to the grand jury to answer charges of exceeding authority in illegally collecting taxes from liquor establishments.

A junta named by the state government will take over the council's duties.

Hands Off

Student Loses Both as Old Cannon Fires Suddenly During Initiation.

Norman, Okla., March 19 (A.P.)—An old 2-foot cannon was discharged prematurely in a secret engineering society initiation at the University of Oklahoma today, resulting in the loss of both hands by George Latham Yates, 22, Bartlesville Junior.

Yates was being initiated into the Loyal Knights of Old Trust by the bank of South-Central Trust, 10 miles west of Norman.

The novice was about to fire the cannon, known as Old Trusty, as the final step toward becoming a member of the secret society, when the gun went off unexpectedly. Old Trusty had been fired by other initiates and the group believed some sparks were left. Fellow students rushed him to a hospital.

Officials of the university said they had investigated Yates' injury and probably would not take disciplinary action.

E. Temple Thurston Dies At Residence in London

London, March 19 (U.P.)—E. Temple Thurston, author and dramatist, died tonight of pneumonia in his London home. He was 64. Thurston was stricken three weeks ago while writing a scenario for a film of the famous novel, "The Wandering Jew."

He began writing while very young, and published two books of poems in 1895. Two years later, Thurston wrote "The Apple of Eden," ultimately published in rewritten form in 1908. His first play, "Red and White Earth," was produced in 1902.

HILLQUIT QUESTIONS REMEDIAL PROGRAM

Robinson Defends Record of Congress in Debate at New York.

New York, March 19 (A.P.)—The Roosevelt program for economic rehabilitation was called by the Democratic Senate leader as pointing the way to a new and healthier era, and was assailed by the national chairman of the Socialist party as short-sighted and ineffective, in a debate tonight.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, declaring the Congress is "in a mood to act quickly for the common good," said an "impressive" record already had been achieved with the passage of beer and banking legislation. He added the speedy enactment of farm and unemployment relief measures "appears to be certain."

Morris Hillquit, national Socialist chairman, recited the record of the emergency steps already taken by the Roosevelt administration, constituted an impressive record, said "it by no means embraces in detail the task that is before us."

Robinson, declaring that while the emergency steps already taken by the Roosevelt administration, constituted an impressive record, said "it by no means embraces in detail the task that is before us."

TWO DEAD HAVE SHOT IN NEW YORK CRIMES

Woman Killed by Burglar and Men Are Attacked in Speakeasies.

New York, March 19 (A.P.)—Two speakeasy shootings and the mysterious death of a 70-year-old woman gave the homicide squad a busy time today.

The body of Nell McGowan was found on the floor of her bedroom in an East Side apartment. Her jaw had been fractured and a window of the room had been broken from the outside. Police expressed the belief she had been killed by a burglar, but withheld an official report pending an autopsy.

The speakeasy victims were Anthony Bastone, 48, known to police as "Tough Tony," who was killed in an argument over policy game winnings, and William Osterich, 24, who was found seriously wounded in a midtown establishment.

Police went to the place in response to an anonymous telephone call and found Osterich lying in the cellar. The place otherwise was deserted. In brief moments of consciousness at the hospital Osterich said he was employed as porter at the place and had been shot outside by some one he did not see. He then ran into the place and collapsed on the cellar floor.

PASSIVE CHRISTIAN IS CALLED USELESS

Rev. S. T. Nicholas Says Casual Support of Church Is Not Enough.

The Rev. Samuel T. Nicholas, pastor of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, said in his sermon yesterday that one must be either for or against Christianity, and that true Christianity demands more than just being good.

"Some people think that if they are good they are fulfilling their duty, but Jesus demands more than that, for he that is not actively for the church is against the church. There is no halfway," he said.

Speaking figuratively, the Rev. Mr. Nicholas pointed out that a man's joining the church was like a man's wedding. "If the bridegroom disappears immediately after the wedding and years later turns up in a far land, bearing testimonials of his goodness and righteousness, he still has betrayed his bride. So it is with the church. If a man joins the church and then goes through life ignoring the church, even though he be ever so good, he has been unfaithful to his church, for his heart is filled with envy and resistance when they are not with God."

"It does not mean that we must be active in our resistance to Him whom we reject Him. We may have merely a passive resistance, just ignoring Him. But we can no more ignore Christianity than nature can ignore the springtime. Spring is just around the corner and all nature is going to respond. That part of nature which does not respond to the coming of spring is dead, and so it is with Christianity. He that does not respond is dead insofar as his usefulness to the church is concerned."

Leas Seek Delay In Liberty Fight

Convicted Tennesseans Are Battling Extradition to North Carolina.

Clarkville, Tenn., March 19 (A.P.)—Col. Luke Leas and his son, Luke Leas, Jr., held in the county jail here since their arrest last Tuesday by North Carolina officers on an extradition warrant, conferred with attorneys today in preparation for tomorrow's hearing on their writ of habeas corpus.

The Leas' attorneys said they planned to ask Judge John T. Cunningham to grant a continuance, explaining that probably ten days will be needed by them to prepare for the hearing.

Col. Leas, Nashville publisher and former United States senator, faces a six-to-ten-year prison sentence on charges of violating North Carolina bank laws, while his son was sentenced to serve from two to six years or pay $25,000 in fine and costs. The charges grew out of the collapse of the Central Bank & Trust Co. of Asheville.

Hero Near Death From Wire Burns

Lifeguard Saves Children as Quake Shakes Down Tension Line.

San Pedro, Calif., March 19 (A.P.)—Heracles, a 23-year-old lifeguard, Jack Cheaney, saved a group of small children from possible injury or death today.

An earthquake shock jarred a high-tension electric wire from its moorings and it fell into a baseball park where 25 children were at play. Cheaney seized the wire and threw it over the fence, suffering severe burns upon his hands and abdomen.

Hospital attendants said his condition was critical.

Spring Arrives in Capital At 8:43 O'clock Tonight

Vernal Equinox Ends Abnormally Warm Winter and Prophets Say Coming Days Will Have Higher Temperatures Than Average for Years.

(Associated Press.)

The sun today will begin six months shining more strongly on the northern half of the world than on the southern—in other words, spring will be here.

March 20, at 8:43 p. m. Eastern standard time, is the moment of the "vernal equinox," the words used by experts as meaning the advent of spring.

Weather prophets report that just as this moment will end an abnormally warm winter, so will the coming days have higher temperatures than the average for years past.

In expert terms, the "vernal equinox" comes when the earth, circling around the sun, moves into such a position that the part north of the equator receives more heat and has longer days than the Southern Hemisphere.

The winter of 1932-33, says the United States Weather Bureau, continued the trend of abnormally warm winters that has been going on since 1905 east of the Rocky Mountains. Average temperatures during the official winter season (December, January and February) ranged from 1 to 3 degrees above the normal of 35 degrees in various sections. The trend so far in March has been similar.

Spring weather, observers say, also gives indications of being warmer than normal, judging from the trend of spring temperatures during recent years. This, however, is not an official forecast. Temperatures of all four seasons, during the last 25 years, have tended above normal.

A warm spring would be generally beneficial to crop growth, says J. B. Zinner, chief of the Weather Bureau's climate and ground-water division. But it might be harmful to fruit trees, causing them to bud prematurely with danger of a later frost killing the young shoots.

The winter just ended bore out unofficial prophecies of abnormal warmth based on the Weather Bureau's discovery that apparently there are "cycles" of abnormally warm and cold weather lasting over periods of years.

Temperatures during the official Weather Bureau winter averaged 1 to 3 degrees above normal in the Southern States, 3 to 5 in the Central States and Middle Atlantic area, and 1 to 3 in the Northeast.

Early in the season it was not expected that the number of warm days would reach the figures they have. Introductions so far have scored above 700. The number in the House is nearly twice that in the Senate. There remain but five more days during which bills may be presented under normal conditions, and it is expected there will be many.

That introductions may be made only by unanimous consent is estimated the total will reach 900. Less than 400 bills have actually passed both houses and received the approval of the government.

Frederick Wiseman, a Republican, introduced a bill to amend the Federal Reserve Act and some few are on the third reading of both branches.

Of the outstanding legislation yet to be disposed of may be mentioned the following:

The budget bill for the next biennium, appropriations in which have been slashed nearly $6,000,000 by Gov. Ritchie after a bitter battle led by Senator J. Alan Cook, of St. Mary's County.

Repeal Convention.

Machinery for a State constitutional convention to ratify repeal of the eighteenth amendment, coupled with regulatory legislation for the sale of beer under modification of the Volstead act.

The administration's gasoline tax distribution measure, regarded as one of the most important items of the current session, which has passed the House after bitter opposition from some of the counties, and may yet encounter trouble in the Senate.

The civil marriage bill which is through the House, but which will face a stiff fight in the Senate, and bills in both branches requiring a 72-hour interval between issuance of marriage license and performance of the wedding rite.

Judiciary Salary Cuts.

Senator Cook's proposed reduction in salaries of judiciary of the State and Federal courts, which has scored several points in the upper House.

Possible major changes in the organization of the University of Maryland, dependent upon the report of a special investigating committee of the Senate, in view of the attack made on the institution's appropriations included in the budget.

A number of measures to liberalize blue laws, affecting movies and sports, particularly as regards Allegheny, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties. The bill by Senator Lee, Henry Lehmann, Jr., Mr. August Meier, Christian P. Umhau, George Soper, Jr., Samuel German, Arthur Halpin and Mrs. John T. Tanner.

"Religious Drifters."

Choosing as his subject for the morning sermon, "These Past Five Years," Mr. Tenski said:

"The world today, more than five years ago, needs the very thing the church has to give—faith to believe, courage to carry on, endurance to stand upright beneath trial and tribulation, and a realization of the fact that there are many more in need whose distress has not been revealed. Let the church rise to meet this challenge with a realization of its strength and resources to correct the wrongs that create these sorrows and to save both lives and souls now greatly endangered."

"Washington has been called a city of religious drifters. There are many who were once active but who now are willing to stand on the sidelines and watch the work that goes on. Let the church reach these individuals to come forward at this time to lend a hand in rebuilding a world that is wasted and that cries out for Christlike compassion to heal its hurt."

Warm-Air Dirigible Among Inventions

Quake-Proof Bricks and New Auto Fuel Make Debut Today.

Los Angeles, March 19 (A.P.)—The model of a heated air-propelled dirigible designed to soar at the rate of 300 miles an hour, "earthquake proof" bricks and a new fuel claimed to be far more powerful than gasoline are among the "brain children" of inventors brought to Los Angeles for tomorrow's opening session of the annual National Inventors' Congress.

The new fuel, produced by Olin P. Russell, of Los Angeles, was said by Albert G. Burns, president of the congress, to enable the operation of airplanes and motor cars "more efficiently and economically."

Miss Dorothy Stark will reign over the congress as "Queen Patent Pending."

Mooney Parade Is Held on Coast

The meeting, preceded by a parade on Market street, was orderly. Resolutions were adopted urging the trial of Mooney on a murder indictment still pending against him in Superior Court.

Mooney was convicted of murder for the bombing of the preparedness day parade here in 1916, and is serving a life sentence. Ten persons were killed by the explosion.

Council Meeting at Mayflower.

The District of Columbia Women's Democratic Educational Council, will meet at 8 o'clock tonight, in the Jefferson room of the Mayflower Hotel. Discussion of the proposed by-laws and selection of a nominating committee will be the order of business.

Church to Give Benefit.

The choir and members of the parish of the Brightwood Park Methodist Episcopal Church will present "Ye Olden Folks Concert" tomorrow and Wednesday nights. The entertainment will be given in old-fashioned costumes, and proceeds will be for the benefit of the Ladies' Guild.

Lincoln Steffens, Writer, Is Mass Meeting Speaker in San Francisco.

San Francisco, March 19 (A.P.)—Lincoln Steffens, noted writer, spoke before a "free Tom Mooney" mass meeting in the civic auditorium today.

The meeting, preceded by a parade on Market street, was orderly. Resolutions were adopted urging the trial of Mooney on a murder indictment still pending against him in Superior Court.

Mooney was convicted of murder for the bombing of the preparedness day parade here in 1916, and is serving a life sentence. Ten persons were killed by the explosion.

ASSEMBLY WILL RUN ONLY TWO WEEKS MORE

Many Important Proposals Yet to Be Acted Upon; 700 Offered So Far.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 19.—When the Maryland General Assembly reconvenes tomorrow night it will have just two weeks to run, for under constitutional provisions the 90-day session must be adjourned by the end of April 8. The opening day was January 4.

And with this brief period remaining, the law makers find themselves confronted with a mass of business. This situation developed from several reasons, chiefly among which was the pending legislation incident thereto, and the long drawn out battle and subsequent investigations of budget proposals, the gasoline tax bill and other important proposals that have been hanging in the balance.

700 Proposals Introduced.

Early in the session it was not expected that the number of proposals would reach the figures they have. Introductions so far have scored above 700. Siren to Announce Bandits Are Loose

Vigilantes, Instead of Fire Truck, to Answer This Alarm.

North Kansas City, Mo., March 19 (A.P.)—The next time you hear a siren in this industrial community of 3,000 population, don't look for the fire truck—hunt for cover.

A vigilante committee of riflemen, a "secret dozen" or more, has been formed by Mayor W. A. E. Hecker to combat assaults upon law and order, such as the $14,500 holdup of Mrs. Doris Jolly, bank messenger, January 28.

Only Hecker knows the names of all the committeemen. The siren, placed atop the city hall, will call their 22-20 pieces into action against bandit gangs.

North Greece Peninsula Rocked by Earthquake

Athens, Greece, March 19 (U.P.)—Strong earth shocks shook the Chalkidiki Peninsula in northern Greece today, sending the populace into the open in terror.

The last standing ruins in the villages, devastated by an earthquake recently, were tumbled to earth.

DR. HENRY TROXELL DIES IN MARYLAND

Manufacturing Chemist, of This City, Is Victim of Paralytic Stroke.

Dr. Henry Lewis Troxell, a manufacturing chemist of Washington and a former Baltimore druggist, died suddenly at noon yesterday in Mount St. Mary's Hospital. He suffered a stroke of paralysis after attending church services with his wife and daughter.

Dr. Troxell was born near Mount St. Mary's, Md., in 1880. He received his early education at the college there and later attended the University of Maryland and Johns Hopkins University, where he graduated in 1909. He entered the University of Maryland at College Park and received his A. B. degree in 1912. He became a member of the faculty there, then an instructor at the Women's College in Baltimore, and subsequently a druggist and manufacturing chemist.

Funeral services will be held at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg, Md., at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The Rev. J. Leo Barley, pastor, will be the celebrant of a requiem mass. Interment will take place in Mount St. Mary's Cemetery. The time had not been set last night, nor the day of the funeral.

Beside his wife, Mrs. Effie M. Troxell, Dr. Troxell is survived by a daughter, Miss Margaret M. Troxell, of Clarendon, Va.; a son, John Henry Lewis Troxell, a student at St. Francis College, Loretto, Pa.; and two sisters, Mrs. Loretto, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. Susan Troxell, nun in a convent at Brookton, Mass.

Edgewood Inquest In Soldier's Death

All Witnesses Released, but Told to Appear Wednesday.

Edgewood Arsenal, Md., March 19 (A.P.)—The coroner's inquest into the death of Private Joseph J. McDyer, 28, whose body was found here yesterday, was set for Wednesday night. In the meantime, the 11 persons who were detained yesterday for questioning in the circumstances surrounding the death of McDyer were released, but were ordered to return at the inquest Wednesday.

McDyer's body was found in the road by four musicians just before dawn yesterday. He had attended a St. Patrick's Day dance and afterward apparently attended several parties in the vicinity of Edgewood Arsenal.

An uncle of McDyer, Thomas V. Melley, treasurer of the Thirty-fifth Ward Republican Club, Philadelphia, notified authorities here he would claim the body and would take it to Tammany, Pa., for burial Tuesday.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Emanuel Episcopal Church, Braddock, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow with Mrs. Francis Drischler at her home at 608 North School Terrace. All members are urged to be present.

MARYLANDER SLAIN IN ROW OVER STILL

Another Is Held in Salisbury Following Killing in Filling Station.

Salisbury, Md., March 19 (A.P.)—Basil Heath, 38, of Delmar, Del., was held by police today as the slayer of Charles Hill, 40, of Maryland, in a gasoline filling station on the Salisbury-Delmar highway last night.

Hill died while being taken to the Peninsula General Hospital here after he had been wounded three times. Heath was arrested by a group of police officers who overtook his automobile on a Salisbury street.

Sheriff O. Murray Phillips, after questioning several witnesses today, said the slaying was precipitated by ill-feeling over the alleged disappearance of a liquor still.

The sheriff quoted witnesses as saying Heath entered the filling station of Samuel Smith and walked into a room where four or five persons were talking.

Confronting Hill, according to the witnesses, Heath exclaimed, "I hear you accuse me of stealing your still." "I don't know whether I accused you," the witnesses quoted Hill as replying, but they added, his words were cut short as Heath, who has only one arm, struck Hill.

Sheriff Phillips was told that before Hill could regain his feet, Heath pulled out a pistol and fired. Later in the shooting, was found with five empty shells in its chamber.

Heath left the station, but returned a half hour later and was told Hill was dead. Sheriff Phillips and deputies, in the meantime went to Heath's home and learned he had not been there.

Sheriff Phillips said that today he questioned Samuel Smith and his wife, Bernice Kelley, of West Potomac, Somerset County, and Paul Jackson.

Gov. Allen Calls Wet Legislature

Louisiana Session, to Act on Repeal and Beer, Meets Today.

Baton Rouge, La., March 19 (A.P.)—Gov. O. K. Allen tonight set 10 p. m. Monday as the assembly hour of a special session of the Louisiana Legislature for repeal of the State prohibition law and the fixing of a $5 per barrel State tax on beer.

The governor said his formal call for the session would be issued late tonight or early tomorrow, but that the hour for the assembly had been definitely fixed.

The proposed tax of $5 a barrel on beer will yield the State about $1,500,000 a year, Gov. Allen said, basing his estimate on a calculated sale of 300,000 barrels.

Gendarmes Charge Mob Prototyping French Taxes

Remmes, France, March 19 (A.P.)—Gendarmes and mounted republicans today charged demonstrators who had gathered following upon a taxpayer protest meeting. Twenty persons were arrested and later released.

Nation-wide demonstrations against new budgetary measures were generally calm, minor disturbances being reported in Nantes, Rheims, St. Quentin and Tours.

Havana Censor Active As Interior Ferments

Havana, Cuba, March 19 (U.P.)—Military censorship on Havana newspapers was tightened sharply today as unrest in the interior grew.

All newspapers were ordered to submit to the censor any items relating to the treasury department, the economic and banking situation, stock exchange, the foreign and national floating debt, immigration, customs duties and federal, municipal and provincial taxes.

MUSSOLINI'S PLAN.

Premier Mussolini of Italy proposes a four-power pact for the preservation of peace in Europe. He would have France, Germany, Great Britain and Italy join hands in an agreement to promote both security and peace, in the spirit of the Kellogg pact and a "no force" declaration. This "no force" declaration was signed at Geneva last December, supporting the principle of simultaneous arms equality for Germany and security for France.

There is reason to believe that the Mussolini plan will be broached to Premier Daladier of France this week upon the return of the British prime minister from Rome. A conference of the premiers of France, England, Germany and Italy is suggested.

Signor Mussolini holds that world economic questions can not be solved so long as political differences disturb the great powers of Europe. If such questions of security and armaments can be settled by a four-power peace pact, the way will be paved for a world economic conference in which cordial cooperation would prevail.

The United States would look with favor upon a peace pact by the great powers of western Europe. With that theater freed from the danger of war, the nations could take up with confidence the problems arising in Asia, including the question of dealing with Soviet Russia.

Europe's relationships are so complicated and national interests are so conflicting that no single project aiming at complete accord can be expected to remove all danger of collisions. The Mussolini plan, however, points in the right direction. If it can bring about a better understanding between France and Germany on questions of armament and security it will become a stepping-stone toward firm peace. With the four European powers in accord, peace is practically assured in Europe; and Europe acting in concert with the United States can powerfully operate for peace throughout Asia. The Mussolini plan, therefore, may be the foundation upon which world peace can be established.

STUDY IN SNOW VALUE.

On the top of a high peak of the Sierra Nevada Mountains stands a small cabin built by the professor of Greek and Latin at the University of Nevada. From this point Dr. J. E. Church, Jr., developed an accurate method of snow surveying as a hobby. He measured the depth of snow layers and weighed samples, he determined the relation between snow and water supply and after years of pursuing this scientific pastime alone, the development of his hobby has almost crowded out his classical profession.

Today Dr. Church's method is supported by the legislatures of Nevada and California and by producers of electric power on the Pacific Coast. Alberta, Canada, has also sought to employ his knowledge to forecast the amount of water that will be available in its rivers during the summer. The University of Michigan asked him to go on two expeditions to Greenland, from which he returned with even greater knowledge of snow, winds and ice.

Dr. Church has brought to light interesting facts in the problem of water conservation through his studies on Mount Rose, where the timber was ruthlessly destroyed for the silver mines of Virginia City and Gold Hill about 65 years ago. At an elevation of 5,500 feet he found that a reforested area of young pines had 13 inches of snow in March, the equivalent of five inches of water. This was twice the amount conserved at the same elevation in the deforested area, and nine times as much as that covered with sagebrush. Dr. Church found that dense forests are wasteful of snow, compared with forests that have trees sufficiently separated to allow the snow to filter through. Yet any kind of forest conserves more snow than the bar-ren areas. Even an open field of snow is frequently protected by a single line of trees that acts as a break against the wind.

THE "RUBBER STAMP" REVOLT.

The first outward evidence of revolt against the emergency procedure which has been followed in the House of Representatives since the extra session convened appeared on Friday, when several members objected to immediate consideration of the Steagall bill to relieve banks outside of the Federal Reserve system. For just a week the House was on model behavior. It passed one measure after another on the simple assurance of President Roosevelt and a few leaders that such action was necessary to cope with the economic crisis. Some members stretched their personal convictions and others summoned courage they have never demonstrated before to vote against the lobbies. They were impressed by the urgent necessity of supporting the President under any circumstances and temporarily sidetracked their own plans for saving the country.

Those brief periods in which either branch of Congress acts with the single motive of promoting the Nation's welfare are all too rare. It is remarkable that the House, which is handicapped by a large number of new and inexperienced members, could be held in full restraint for even a week. Dashing young congressmen are anxious to demonstrate their powers. Wiseacres who were swept into office by the landslide of last November are itching for a chance to apply their panaceas to the bewildered world. It is really cruel to hold them in complete subjection while a few administration measures, of which they know very little, are rushed through the legislative mill.

Older members of the House are also restive. The Republican minority is grieved because it knows so little of what is going on. Many Democrats fear that their prestige is being trampled on because they are given opportunity only to "rubber stamp" measures that have been drafted in executive councils. "It is an insult to the membership of the House," cried Representative Fuller, Democrat from Arkansas, when Mr. Steagall asked for passage of the latest banking bill on the recommendations of the White House, the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board and Senator Glass. He complained that the economy bill "was rammed down our throats without giving us an opportunity to study it," and ended his lament with this pungent sentence:

"The members of the committee show they do not know much about it [the bank relief bill] and want to have time to study it, and yet you ask us to pass it and send it to the Senate and let it go out to the world that we are nothing but a lot of sons of jackasses here and we are not legislating, but are sending it over to the Senate and letting them study it, and if there are any mistakes they will correct them."

Congress doesn't want the public to know that it turns bills into laws without reading them.

MONOPOLY VS. COOPERATION.

Because of the banking crisis last week little attention was accorded to a very important decision of the Supreme Court. Business interests throughout the country will find it to their advantage to read the opinion of Chief Justice Hughes in the Appalachian Coals case. It is especially illuminating at this time because of the widespread demand for revision of the antitrust laws to aid business through the depression.

The Supreme Court decided that the formation of a selling agency by 37 bituminous coal producers in Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee did not constitute a violation of the Sherman act. A decision of the lower court was reversed, but that court was instructed to retain jurisdiction of the case as a safeguard against possible infractions of the law in the future.

A general impression has grown up that cooperation among business and industrial interests for their own welfare is barred by the antitrust laws. On this basis an organized attempt is being made to break down those protective statutes. In a masterful decision the Supreme Court corrects that impression, and gives the cooperative coal-selling agency a clean bill of health. The antitrust laws do not forbid cooperation for the improvement of business conditions; they forbid monopoly and restraint of trade.

A cooperative agency is not to be condemned, says the court, "merely because it may effect a change in market conditions, where the change would be a mitigation of recognized evils and would not impair, but rather foster, fair competitive opportunities." An effort to stabilize business and to correct abuses does not necessarily constitute restraint of trade. The antitrust laws do not come into the picture unless competition is stifled and the cooperative agency seeks to dominate prices. In the case before the court it was found that even though competition among the 37 producers was suspended, the cooperative group was required, nevertheless, to meet the competition of other groups.

"Nothing in theory or experience indicates that the selection of a common selling agency to represent a number of producers should be deemed to be more abnormal than the formation of a huge corporation bringing various independent units into one ownership. Either may be prompted by business exigencies and the statute gives to neither a special privilege. The question in either case is whether there is an unreasonable restraint of trade or an attempt to monopolize. If there is, the combination can not escape because it has chosen corporate form, and if there is not, it is not to be condemned because of the absence of corporate integration."

This opinion admirably clarifies the situation. It suggests to business interests that they may go as far as they like in cooperative efforts so long as they do not attempt to restrain trade or to create monopolies.

What more does business ask? If any one is suggesting that monopolies be permitted for the sake of pulling out of the depression more rapidly, that suggestion will be crushed under the united protest of the people. If business interests wish to cooperate for the improvement of conditions without restraining trade, there seems to be nothing in the law to prevent them from doing so.

FOREIGNERS IN RUSSIA.

Four British subjects are about to undergo trial in Soviet Russia on the charge of sabotage. They are employees of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company, which supplied steel for turbo-generators in the Dnieprostrol power plant. It is charged that the blades of the turbines were corroded by the injection of sand or acid, with malicious intent, and in pursuance of a "counter-revolutionist" plot. Thirty-five Russians, employees of the British concern, are also under arrest. Power stations and lighting plants in several cities were put out of commission by the breakdown of the turbines.

Despite the violent protest of the British government, Foreign Commissar Litvinoff announces that the British subjects will be tried, and if convicted will be punished according to law. In a previous case of alleged sabotage involving German and Russian subjects, the Germans were acquitted and the Russians convicted and executed. It was generally believed throughout Europe that the Soviet dictatorship had concocted the sabotage charges to cover up the stupidity of Russian mechanics and to convince the Russian people that foreign conspirators were trying to break down the Soviet industrial program. The British government evidently holds a similar opinion now, and has gone so far as to assert that its subjects are innocent. "If you are so convinced that they are innocent," retorts Litvinoff, "why should you fear their trial?"

The reason for fearing a trial is well founded. The previous trial was a mockery of justice. Russian "jurisprudence" is a travesty. No foreigner's life is safe in Russia if the dictatorship decides that he must be sacrificed for political reasons. The Stalin crowd can easily save foreigners, however, when it is politically expedient. The courts are as much under the thumb of the dictatorship as any other department of the Soviet government. British threats to break off diplomatic relations may induce the Soviet to abandon the prosecution, especially since the Hitler regime in Germany is preparing to terminate the government guarantees to German traders dealing with Russia. The Soviet is seeking to establish diplomatic relations with all the great powers, and may deem it wise not to arouse their fears for the safety of their nationals in Russia.

Americans employed in Russia are of course risking the same treatment that is accorded to British subjects, but so long as Stalin hopes to win diplomatic recognition from the United States it is not probable that Americans will be charged with sabotage and threatened with death at the hands of a corrupt judiciary.

Farm organizations unanimously repeal their statement of four years ago that delay in creating the Farm Board would be fatal, and adopt a new declaration that delay in creating the new farm scheme will be fatal. Something is bound to be fatal.

The question of the hour is: What effect will 3.2 per cent beer have upon 10 per cent home brew?

Beer by Mothers' Day!

FOREIGN SERVICE HEROES

From the Detroit Free Press.

In Washington Henry L. Stimson, on his last day in office of Secretary of State, unveiled a memorial tablet in the State Department Building in honor of diplomatic and consular officers who lost their lives on active duty under tragic or heroic circumstances. The 65 names emblazoned on the memorial include those of men who died in the earthquakes and volcanic eruptions at Messina, Martinique and Yokohama, or were lost at sea, as when the U. S. S. Cyclops sank, or were killed as Vice Consul Robert W. Imbrie was slain in Persia, or died from Tropical plagues and yellow fever.

"The tablet has been erected with the contributions of our present Foreign Service and it is intended that it should serve as a means of bringing home to the people of this country the fact that we have a service in our Government devoted to peaceful intercourse between the nations and the assistance of our peaceful commerce, which, nevertheless, may occasionally exact from its servants a sacrifice the same as that which we expect from our soldiers and our sailors," said Mr. Stimson.

Any one who has traveled abroad, with occasion to meet the personnel of Uncle Sam's embassies and consulates in foreign lands, will be particularly grateful that these sacrifices of life have not gone unregarded.

While the Foreign Service exists to take care of the Nation's diplomatic relations abroad, it also establishes a bit of the homeland for the traveler. Only the history of the service can show the innumerable instances of aid and comfort given private citizens, who often, with or without cause, get panicky in a strange land. Then embassy or consulate offers a refuge, an ever-present help in time of trouble.

The service is delicate and exacting in the most quiet hours. In times of emotional disturbance or actual physical danger its hazards increase. But the men, and the few women, of the staffs acquit themselves like true Americans, aware that they stand wherever they are as the embodiment of the great Nation they serve. Brave in the face of disaster and death as they are capable in the routine affairs of every day, they deserve remembrance from their fellow countrymen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Abolition of Unwarranted Dole the Greatest Achievement of Roosevelt—Disabled Veterans Now Safe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After President Roosevelt has put into effect each of the several constructive measures thus far presented to Congress and passed by it with almost a 100 per cent vote, including the beer bill, he will have accomplished in less than two short weeks for the welfare and lasting good of the American people more than any other President has heretofore done in his four-year term of office.

Every movement Mr. Roosevelt has made and every word he has uttered have been saturated with reassuring hope and promise, which are already swinging the pendulum forward with a speed unprecedented in history.

The provision in the economy act by which the dole and graft now being handed out to veterans whose disability is in no way due to war service is to be eliminated and we hope forever discontinued, will stand out as the monumental performance of them all. I am confident that this act alone will live and stand out in history as one of his greatest achievements, and one for which all Americans will fondly remember him.

In the first place the bill authorizing this graft was passed over a President's veto and against the wishes of a vast majority of our citizens. It was enacted not because the veterans demanded it but because of the vesting politicians who, in the guise of gratitude to veterans, capitulated to the well organized and paid lobbyist.

Evidence a-plenty is now being publicly unfolded that the real deserving veterans are solidly backing the President in his effort to cut out these unwarranted doles, and it is well that they should, because if the practice were not stopped it would be a millstone around the necks of the deserving ones which, in a very short time, would destroy the benefits they are now receiving and which everybody wishes to see continued.

W. T. PARROTT.

Teamwork and Old American Spirit Working for Recovery of Ancient Heritage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is apparent that two facts stand out in bold relief in relation to the present crisis and our new President's treatment thereof: (1) A flood tide in harmony, the will to do the right thing and the spirit of "team work" at its best. (2) A rehabilitation of the creative and expansive spirit of our forefathers, ever at one with decent humility.

Those who had the receptive spark in conceiving and visualizing this country, and in its growth and progress, are again being complemented in their sublime vision and foresight.

Nationally, we have just passed through a wretched decade which I think future generations would be glad to blot out. It has been a span of spiritual poverty, of slovenly thinking, of immeasurable vulgarity, shallowness, waste and sham, of weak adjustments and of awful selfishness and greed. Seemingly, there has come a sudden and violent revulsion against all these horrid things and we are once again assuming our splendid heritage of strength and sanity, cleanness of spirit, neighborliness and hope.

In this saving betterment it seems that, as heretofore, a great leader has been vouchsafed to us. Alas! God, and we are again to go forward in the fullness of worthy purpose and in the spirit of our lineage and history that bids us do no ill.

We must have childlike faith in Him who calls us forth; we must obey our captain's word. We must know, deep within, that our children's good, and not our selfish ease, is laid upon us by those who have wrought and gone.

GEORGE W. HARRINGTON.
Brookline, Mass.

Russ Edwards Makes Touching Appeal for Relief of Real Time.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why must the daylight saving mixup into which we are now about to enter be continued any longer?

Confusion for a period of several months will soon begin as to rail, air, bus and steamship time tables as well as newspaper editions because some parts of the country have adopted this great conservation and health measure while others have not.

Soon the schools will be adjourning and the extra hour of daylight will mean much to millions of youngsters, to say nothing of the millions of workers now with a job and soon to have one.

Contemplate, if you please, a beautiful summer evening, a wonderful orchestra and a strain of beer. Then, add to it that extra hour of daylight. Why man, we are just starting to live again, a happy Nation of workers with everybody (almost) minding his own business is "just around the corner." Let us hope the "new deal" will include correction of this stupid mess in which the Nation finds itself every summer.

Why Prohibit Parking on Streets Where There Is No Business?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We read your greater paper everyday. He's a good paper. You aprint every sthing for the people and stell awy. Why police spits signs all about B-street-Canal street NO PARKING ANYTIME? Why no parking displace, no much cars, no much people here?

No parking here why parking P street plenty big business on F street no bis on dis street. Please Mister Zytion you tells police let some park my car on dis a street. We read aplenty you paper.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Disarmament Barriers.

Topeka Capital.

Under present circumstances progress toward disarmament is at a low pressure; events operate just the other way, to halt it until temporary obstacles are out of the way. Among these are the war in China, the Hitler movement in Germany, new frictions between Italy and France due to shipments of arms to Austria and the irreconcilable attitude of Japan to the League of Nations program for a Far East settlement.

The best that can be said for the disarmament project is that though frustrated and downed in futile conferences, it keeps on seeking for a formula and watching for opportunities. It is as William H. Seward said of slavery, another "irrepressible conflict," the only ultimate outcome of which is abolition of war. If Ramsay MacDonald goes the way of Briand and Stresemann, there will be others to keep the torch burning.

Keep the Flag Flying.

Springfield (Minn.) Advance Press.

When the history of this trying period in our history is written, no more gallant fight will be recorded than the fight made by the small country banks who sacrificed their dividends year after year to make good their obligations to their depositors. And in that story there will be no glory for those who withdrew from circulation the millions of dollars of money that was intended to carry on the nation's business and without the use of which the banking system was paralyzed. These bankers have earned their right to the confidence of the people. They did not create the conditions that necessitated the President of the United States to close every bank in this country. They kept the fire flying and they will fly it again when given the opportunity.

In pressing for an adequate Navy, Secretary Swanson is going to run against a lot of opposition. Here's hoping that for once the old adage proves wrong and that the race is to the fleet.

Speaker Rainey's Departure.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Speaker Rainey has joined with President Roosevelt in the business of precedent breaking. Before the dean of the Illinois delegation was elected presiding officer of the House, it had been custom for the Speaker to vote only in the case of a tie. Speaker Rainey, it seems, wants his stand recorded, tie or no tie. After the clerk had completed the roll call on the President's economy bill, Mr. Rainey asked that his name be called in order to be listed among the "aye's." After the beer bill vote, he did the same thing. Although Mr. Rainey is now the presiding officer of the House, it is no less true that he continues to be the elected Representative of the Twentieth Illinois District. His constituents are entitled to know how he stands on the issues before the House in these critical times. This departure from practice is highly commendable in the new Speaker.

Happenings of Interest in Washington Society

Dinner Given at Home By Justice and Mrs. Stone.

M. R. JUSTICE AND MRS. HARLAN FISKE STONE entertained at dinner Saturday evening in their home on Wyoming avenue.

The Ambassador of Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso has canceled the dinner he was to have given tomorrow evening because of the death of the Duke of Abruzzi. However, the Ambassador will attend the meeting of the Italy-America Society tonight at the Mayflower, when Justice Wendell Phillips Stafford, former associate justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, a well-known student of Shakespeare and Dante, will be speaker. Justice Stafford has chosen as his subject "The Divine Comedy," a translation of which he has been working on for many years.

The Minister of Hungary and Countess Szechenyi were greatly surprised on Saturday evening when they arrived at the legation, after a dinner party, and were greeted at the door by Mrs. C. J. W. Torr, wife of the First Secretary of the British Embassy, and Miss. Francine May, daughter of the Ambassador of Belgium and Mme. May, attired in maid's uniform. Proceeding still further into the house, they found the Ambassador of Germany, Herr Friedrich von Prittwitz und Gaffron, and the Minister of the Netherlands, Mr. J. H. von Roijen, officiating as butlers, while M. Jules Henry, Counselor of the French Embassy, in the garb of a chef, and brandishing a large knife, presided over the buffet table, about which members of the Diplomatic Corps were gathered.

The party, planned as a surprise, was one of the few that really surprised those for whom it was given. After greeting their visitors, the Minister and Countess Szechenyi joined in the merriment of the evening, while an orchestra composed of the guests played for the dancing.

Later in the evening Mr. Torr and Senator Ramon Padilla, Second Secretary of the Spanish Embassy, wearing overalls, entered the room pushing a wheelbarrow, which held an enormous box. They formally presented it to the minister, who, upon opening it and digging into innumerable layers of paper wrappings, found the gift of the evening, a handsome silver samovar, presented as a farewell present from some of the diplomats to the Szechenyis, who will leave Washington soon for London.

Attorney General and Wife Entertained at Luncheon.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings were the guests in whose honor the Charge d'Affaires of Chile, Mr. Benjamin Cohen, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the embassy, when Mrs. Spruille Braden, of New York, who, with Mr. Braden and their daughter, Miss Laura Braden, and Miss Martje Braden, have been spending the week-end with Mr. Cohen, acted as hostess.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Cummings will leave tomorrow for their home in Greenwich, Conn., where Mrs. Cummings will remain for several weeks making arrangements to move her household to the Capital. Mr. Cummings will return sooner, and will go again to Greenwich to attend the testimonial dinner to be given in his honor on April 5.

The Charge d'Affaires of Persia.

Mrs. Azodi entertained at luncheon yesterday for a number of out-of-town guests. Saturday evening she entertained at dinner for the same group.

One of them, a Wilmington girl, came out with her child and governess and took a house, paying the rent in advance. Can you imagine her dismay when a van backed up to the door and took away all her furniture? When she tried to complain to her landlord, she found that he had been committed to the penitentiary. It was really terrible as this girl has little or no money of her own and her husband had given her just so much for her Reno expenses. So she was in despair and telephoned for him to come out here and help her get the thing straightened out, and now they are both staying at the Riverside Hotel. Well, they were one pair at the party.

The other man, one of Reno's cleverest doctors, was there in the apartment of his second wife (our hostess), from whom he is divorced. His story is amazing and is so well known as to be confirmable by anybody who has even set foot in Reno since he arrived. While out here from New York to divorce his first wife he met and married wife No. 2, also an Easterner, out here for the same reason. They bought a house and he took up practice here, wife No. 1 having returned to New York. Then, to break up a flirtation between his 18-year-old son (the spent part of the year with them) and a young divorcee at the Riverside, he set out to divert her attention to himself. Wife No. 2, fancying he enjoyed his salvation too much, divorced him one day in a pique and returned East. (Twenty-four divorces, you remember for residents.) A short time later wife No. 1, suffering from a serious disease in which the doctor specializes and excels, returned to Reno for treatment and settled in his house with a trained nurse, which seemed the most comfortable and convenient plan all around. In the meantime wife No. 2, having discovered that she did the doctor an injustice about the little divorcee (in that she had disappeared from the picture at the end of her 42 days), returns to Reno and takes an apartment. The doctor and this wife made the second pair of this strange gathering. It must be hard to believe for any one who hasn't seen it.

As I write this letter I look over at the courthouse (some one called it Lady Luck), only a few yards away—so near and yet so far. It is maddening. Who would think that one little signature could mean so much? I feel more and more like the girl who said, "Next time I will shoot or tick."

Much love. ELIZABETH.

Demonstration Planned When Matsuo Lands

New York, March 19 (A.P.)—Donald Henderson, economics instructor at Columbia University, in a statement today said the "American Committee for Struggle Against War" planned to hold a demonstration on the pier Thursday when Yosuke Matsuo, Japan's chief delegate to the League of Nations, arrives from Europe.

"Matsuo's journey through the United States," the statement said, "is for the purpose of making contracts for munitions and other war materials, while bargaining with our own imperialists for their support of the Japanese government."

Flowers for Frocks and Hats Are the Mode, Dare Declares.

The Meanderer

Deals With Blue Shoes, Blue Gowns, Perfumes for Every Mood, and Silver Packages for the Bathroom.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 18; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Nearly as readily as the dress salesman says "yes, we have it in either black or navy" does the shoe salesman say "That comes in navy, too, madame." Large spaces in shoe display windows are devoted to blue shoes in the new spring designs. The perforated leathers in the new mode are attractive when developed in navy blue. The dotted or patterned effect produced by the perforations is effective with the navy and white spring costume. Some perforated blue shoes, made with the continental heel (not extremely high, yet higher than a walking heel) are reasonably priced in an F street shoe shop of established dependability. Indubitably, blue shoes are on the list of footwear that is in irreproachable taste, according to the assurance of the F street shoe salesman who showed the Meanderer his large supply of blue footwear.

Navy blue and perforations are again handy words in describing a brand-new Lanvin model (at no frightful cost) frock that has made more than an ordinary impression on the Meanderer. The frock is practical, but far from prosaic. The body of the dress is plain-line, plain-fabric, navy (also in black, madame), but from the shoulder line—detachable, with a row of tailored buttons that serve as trimmings as well as fastenings—depend capes of heavy white linen embroidered with restraint in eyelet design. The sturdy linen capes, the gown's only sleeves, so easily removed for laundering, will give a fresh, well-groomed appearance without benefit of dry cleaning.

Perfumes that "pick you up" ask for your credulity. The pleasing, sleek, infallible perfume, whose very band-box perfection of grooming is convincing, assures the Meanderer—always willing to be convinced—that there are perfumes for every mood and for every season. If ennui is coming on, then, the Meanderer gathers, there may be something in the special scents made for "picking you up" and bracing you for the social, moral or what-you-need-kind of endurance. Or if the allure is sought, there are perfumes made to be seductive. If the mood is dreamy and your lounging robe is pretty, another perfume of soothing, restful nature may fit. Furthermore, there are fascinating little sophisticated packages containing three tiny bottles of perfume, selling for $2 the package—offering three scents for as many moods. Prince Matchabelli makes one of these sets, and the little crown label on the diminutive bottles is quite worth the money.

Mentioning a little flask of perfume for $18, carrying a famous maker's name and the label "Vol de Nuit," may seem a bit superfluous in these budget-watching days. But the Meanderer has seen this perfume hailed with photographs and respect in our smartest magazines of mode and must herald its arrival in Washington.

Shelves in the bathroom may glitter with silver if the supplies for them are purchased from the bath ensemble tables arranged by a clever toiletries manager in a big department store. Paper towels, cleaning tissues, toilet paper, packages of soap and other articles, wrapped alike in silver paper labeled with the store's crest are in the array so tempting to the shopper.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

All the big dressmakers are doing big effects on dresses. And the newest hit is most attractive and detachable, of course. It forms an intensively modish feature to the newest Paris Sunday night dress.

It is black crinkly crepe. The bib and the huge puffed sleeves are crisp white organdy. Or it may be that you want a dress for more formal evenings. Well, just omit the sleeves, tuck off the bib and you have it. It will be exquisite in soft white crepe satin or crinkly crepe.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

As a result of the severe cold weather which the entire country has been subjected to, a great many letters have come crying for a remedy to relieve dry, chapped, itching skin of the body; chiefly the thighs, calves and ankles.

Many women complain of dryness, chapping and itching after a warm, cleansing nightly bath. This may be due to insufficient rinsing in clear tepid or cool water. Hard water may cause excessive dryness and chapping because satisfactory rinsing is difficult when the water is hard.

There are special soaps on the market which produce a rich lather and are easily rinsed away. Then there are ready-prepared softeners in the form of bath salts, crystals and powders.

Some authorities recommend a pinch of borax in the water to soften it. But borax extract oil from skin and scalp and therefore should not be used too frequently. The only time I recommend it is to cut the oil in excessively oily scalp and hair. The same objection applies to ordinary washing soda. While it is a good water softener, it tends to make the skin dry and rough if used frequently or generously.

To my mind the meals are by far the finest home-made water softeners. They soften the skin, too. A pound of bran boiled in a gallon of water for half an hour makes a splendid softener. Strain and add just enough of the solution to make the water a milky color. This may be used for body, face and hair.

At this time of year, after a trying, drying winter, every woman would benefit by an occasional oil treatment for her body. Take your usual, warm, cleansing bath tonight, adding the meal softener mentioned above. Rinse thoroughly after a generous soaping, and be sure to pat your entire body perfectly dry with a Turkish towel. Have a little warm oil handy (not hot). Sweet almond or pure olive oil. Massage the oil over your entire body, very generously over any scalp, dry, chapped or itching parts. Allow to remain as long as you conveniently can. Blot away excess with cleansing tissues. Don an old nightgown or pyjamas. And so to bed.

The next morning a shower as cool as you can stand. Then a massage with a rubbing alcohol. Just a little. A generous dusting with powder, boric acid or talcum or bath dusting powder. After a few treatments, run your hand over your skin and thrill to its soft, silky smoothness.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ASK YOUR DOCTOR.

Mrs. A. F. C. writes: 1. Can cancer attack the feet?

2. I read that we should watch any hard lump that remains over a long period.

3. I have had a lump for a long time on the inner side of the large toe, with upper part of toe below nail very hardened with sort of induration in center and a large, open, but not sore crack in this induration. Toe has scarcely any feeling when I touch it, the skin being so thickened. It troubles me as being very unnatural in looks and feeling, although it doesn't pain.

REPLY.

1. Yes. Cancer can develop in any location.

2. That is proper.

3. I wonder if you have a perforating ulcer? Such an ulcer is akin to Raynaud's disease, but not to cancer. What does your physician say?

NO CANDY WORMS.

W. A. W. writes: Will you please write on the subject of candy worms and if there really is such a thing?

REPLY.

There are no candy worms. The old notion to that effect gets in the neighborhood of the truth in only two places. Children sometimes drop their candy on the floor. Worm eggs may stick to a wet piece of candy. There is a theory that eating an excess of candy and other carbohydrates promotes the formation of mucus. If there is considerable mucus in the digestive tract worms are somewhat more inaccessible to worm medicine.

63-Year-Old Teacher Seeks Kansas Degree

Kansas City, Kans., March 19 (A.P.). At the age of 63, W. A. Allen is looking forward to receiving his bachelor's degree at Kansas State Teachers College, Pittsburg, Kans., June 1. Allen, a school teacher, explained his ambition this way: "I just wanted to see what I could do and I wanted to show the 'young bloods' that they weren't so good after all." He plans to teach again next year.

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

M. R. EDWARD HYNES, JR., has long been known as one of the most fantastic bluffers the game of Contract Bridge has ever produced. Because of his reputation for unusual and startling bids, he is often able to score remarkable results on normal hands, principally because his opponents are always looking for something unexpected. Actually, he is one of the soundest Dummy and defensive players in the country, and the fact that his bidding is not always sound is because he really enjoys the game more than anybody else, and not because he lacks knowledge of the proper principles. The following hand is an illustration of his faultless technique in play:

South, Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

The Bidding.

South West North East
1♠ Pass 2NT Pass
3♠ Pass 4♠ Pass
Pass Dbl. Redbl. Pass
Pass Pass

The bidding was quite normal. North might have preferred three no trump to four spades, but he felt that the suit contract was a little safer. West's Double was not the best in the world, but a set of at least 1 trick looked fairly certain. North's Redouble can not be criticized.

The natural Opening was the club King, which Mr. Hynes won in the Dummy with the Ace. Returning to his own hand with the Ace of spades, he found that the suit was banded against him. His next lead, therefore, was a heart, which West won with the Ace. A club was cashed and Mr. Hynes allowed to ruff the third round of that suit. At this point the hand was spread, provided West originally held three hearts and three diamonds. If he held less in either suit, the contract could not be made. Mr. Hynes, therefore, took three rounds of diamonds and then led the King of hearts. This was followed by the Queen of hearts, and Mr. Hynes ruffed. When West followed, everything was all right, because the spades 9 now put West in the lead and his unfortunate player was forced to lead up to the King-Ten tenace.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

Today's Recipe

Lemon Chiffon Pie, With Gelatin.

1 baked pie shell
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
3 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
3 egg whites, beaten

Beat yolks and add sugar, salt, flour. Mix well and add juice, boiling water and rind. Cook until creamy in double boiler. Stir frequently. Add gelatin, which has soaked five minutes in cold water. Stir until gelatin dissolves. Fold in beaten egg whites and pour into pie shell. Cool and chill. Serve cut in wedge-shaped pieces.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

COPIING WITH HIS EQUALS.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Alec had been in the habit of "boxing" with his father and with his favorite uncle when he came to visit. Always, of course, they let him win, tumbling over on the floor at the psychological moment.

On his first day in the kindergarten Alec had to experience a most painful disillusionment. He had hardly taken off his hat and coat before he began inviting one child after another to box with him, demonstrating what he meant with gestures.

One little fellow, more aggressive than the rest, took him up. To Alec's rage and amazement this little boy boxed him all over the room until he fled for cover into the teacher's arms. It was the first time that Alec had been matched against some one of his own size.

He came home crestfallen, puzzled and still angry. "A boy beat me today in kindergarten. I'm not going to box any more, only with you, daddy, and with Uncle Jack."

The incident illustrates the danger of allowing a child to fight unequal battles with grown-ups who always let him win, whether in games, in boxing or in competition of any other sort. The child gets a false idea of his own strength or skill and is the more unfitted to fight fairly and in a good sporting spirit when he is pitted against his own equals.

This makes his adjustment to other children unnecessarily difficult.

Besides, the unexpected realization that he is not as strong nor as skillful nor as clever as he has been led to believe is likely to be so shattering to his normal confidence in himself that it may be long before he recovers from it.

Senator Davis Better, His Physician States

Pittsburgh, March 19 (A.P.).—Senator James J. Davis has just passed the most comfortable 24 hours since his operation for appendicitis a week ago, hospital authorities reported tonight.

"Naturally, our hopes are very high for his complete recovery, which will require a matter of time," his attending physician said. Diabetes has complicated normal convalescence.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A chic traveling suit of sheer wool crepe has a separate cape that tucks in under the old belt of gold and wood. (Seen on Fifth Avenue.)

EVERY spring there is a flower-flutter in Paris, and about that and no more is what it usually amounts to. But this spring I can promise you more. Because more flowers are actually going to trim hats and frocks this spring than any spring for the last several years.

Flowers for hats must be flat, and as nearly real as possible. But flowers for evening wear are to be as unreal as possible—big, drooping, lady-like ones, for instance. Or more especially, collarettes and rushings of flower petals, massed lightly into garlands, and used to outline the décolletage or the peplum, the arms or the hem—but not more than one at a time.

Personally, I think a lot of flower petals is prettier than a ruffled one, or than rushing. Now that we can buy this by the yard, let's look into the flower-necklace possibilities—the same can be made to do quite well for several frocks, you know.

Add flowers are lovely and feminine. Even if you must go Hollywood—or 1888—and wear men's suits—at least put a more than masculine nosegay in your button hole. Or all one pocket with flowers that match your handkerchief—just to prove that you aren't trying to look like a man after all.

If you like prints, but you don't look at the necktie alike. They are more expensive than prints, of course, and are seen mainly in blouses, vests and neckties. But some very smart women who can afford things they want are using this material in one-piece dresses. The weave is fine and durable, the print is just a hint—and that a charming one—well, no more than you would expect in a blouse or necktie. Hence the popularity of necktie silk for very elegant street dresses.

A Standard For Better Business

One of the standards for more-than-truthful advertising promulgated by the Better Business Bureau is that urging advertisers to quote the minimum as well as the maximum comparative price.

For instance, we recommend that, instead of advertising "hats, $2.00—values up to $5.00," the statement be made more definite and explicit and state, "$2.00, values $3.00 to $5.00."

This recommendation is intended to make comparative values and prices of greater meaning to the public; to insure a definiteness and explicitness that deserves and warrants the belief and confidence of the shopping public.

Those advertisers who cooperate with the bureau for a higher code of advertising ethics follow this standard when they advertise comparative prices.

The appearance of this advertisement in these columns is evidence that this newspaper cooperates with and supports the Better Business Bureau for your protection.

CRONIN PLANS HARDER WORK FOR NATS' PITCHERS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE two fellows responsible for the American League ruling that abolished the "momentary" catch a few years ago are now playing side by side in the Washington outfield. Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte, who now form two-thirds of the Nats' outer defense, were the principal figures in the incident that occurred at Griffith Stadium in 1928.

Goslin was on first base at the time, Muddy Ruel was at bat, and Schulte was playing right field for the Browns. Ruel lofted a ball into right field that Schulte was barely able to catch. He caught the ball and in attempting to return it to the infield, dropped it. Goslin, seeing the ball fall to the ground, was unaware that the catch had been made and dashed for second.

Eventually, Schulte returned the ball to first base and imagine Goslin's surprise when he was called out on a double play. Following Bucky Harris' protests, the umpires held a conference that upheld Schulte's catch. But one of League President Barnard's last official acts before his untimely death the next season abolished the "momentary" catch in justice to the base runner who could not be expected to await the umpire's decision on the play before proceeding down the base lines.

Rice's "Momentary" Catch

Another memorable momentary catch decision took place at Griffith Stadium in 1925 in the fourth game of the world series with the Pirates when Sam Rice tumbled back into the center field bleachers to cut off Earl Smith's potential home run and save the game for the Nats.

Rice was playing center field and was backed up nearly to the jury box bleachers in dead center in deference to Smith's slugging ability. Smith's towering fly and Rice reached the bleachers at the same time, the outfielder taking a backward header in among the fans and coming up with the ball a few moments later.

The Pirates charged that some kindly bleacher fan had deposited the ball in Rice's glove as he lay prone in the seats. Other fans were willing to sign affidavits that Rice had made the catch. Rice himself would only say, "The umpire called him out, didn't he?" But the umpire's decision was based on the "momentary" catch rule that was then in the books.

Hard to Figure Fight

There comes to hand the official report of the referee and two judges who handed down the draw decision on the recent Ben Jeyby-Dundee fight for the world's lightweight title. It is an interesting study in the different reactions of fight critics.

Referee Forbes scored seven rounds for Jeyby, seven for Dundee, with one even, and called it a draw. Judge Lynch scored nine rounds for Dundee, five for Jeyby, with one even, and gave Dundee the decision. Judge Farrell scored nine rounds for Jeyby, three for Dundee, called two even, and gave Jeyby the decision.

The referee and judges were selected for their good judgment, yet they exhibited a greater difference of opinion than even Al Smith and Bishop Cannon are capable of. Verily, the judging of fights is a matter of personal opinion.

Coach Staggs on Way

To New Coast Berth

Chicago, March 19 (U.P.)—The "Grand Old Man of the Midway," Amos Alonzo Staggs, coach of football at the University of Chicago since it became a university in 1892, left for Stockton, Calif., today to become a coach at the College of the Pacific.

Staggs was dismissed as coach at Chicago because he had passed the age limit. He is 71 and university regulations provide for retirement of faculty members at the age of 70. Staggs refused, however, to retire. Staggs came here when football was practically unknown in this section of the country. He will start spring football practice at the Pacific school next week.

Braves Seek To Cash on $60,000

Gyselman and Wright Expensive Rookies, Club's Big Hope.

Mound Staff Remains Painful Subject as Season Nears.

(This is another of a series of undated stories analyzing the major league baseball club prospects for 1933.)

(Associated Press.)

THE question is, not whether the Boston Braves are going to be better this season—there's no doubt about that—but rather, are they going to be $60,000 better?

For the present, Manager Bill McKechnie would prefer to table that query. He has been gazing critically at infielders Dick Gyselman and Al Wright, for whose services the Braves paid $60,000 of their hard-earned 1932 profits to the Missions of the Pacific Coast League.

He has learned that both of these youngsters are flawless as fielders, as are Rabbit Maranville, who acts younger than ever starting his twenty-second major campaign, Bill Knothe and even Handy Andy Moore, who does everything for the Braves but pitch.

McKechnie craves

Stick-Work.

Smooth fielding, however, is no treat to McKechnie. He wants hitting, especially behind runners. In past years, during which the Braves have struggled along with a modicum of swatting, few of their safeties have ever coincided with a base runner.

Therefore Gyselman and Wright have to hit or McKechnie is going to consider the club $60,000 out. If they do, the Braves are going to have a fairly good infield, for the first time in many years, to go with their promising outfield, stronger catching department, and compact—a bit too much so—pitching staff.

Since the Tribe set up the wigwag on St. Petersburg's restoration, McKechnie has been calling upon every Brave to slug the cover off the ball every time he steps up to the plate.

Imagine his rage after the recent exhibition game in which the Braves, after making nine hits, dropped to the Phillies by a 5-1 count.

"Great work," McKechnie explained sourly. "Nine hits for only one dinky run. At that rate you would need only 54 of them to nose out Philadelphia."

Another Southpaw

Needed.

Pitching is also a painful subject to the Boston pilot. The staff of nine, including such dependables as Ed Brandt, Bobby Brown, Huck Betts, Ben Cantwell, Tom Zachary, is minus the usual quota of southpaws. Bill is convinced that he needs at least one more portside, but has no idea where he is going to get him.

"Every other Coast League is fairly overrun with good pitchers," he complained, "but let those managers hear of another one running loose and they'll break a leg getting to him."

There other Coast League slugs, after making nine hits, dropped to the Phillies by a 5-1 count. Hogan from the Giants has plugged a catching gap even bigger than that of well-versed veteran and changed the department into a really powerful unit.

Bailey Al Spink and Ray Hargrave both can stand up for a hundred games, but they hit under 270.

With the season he received last season, Baxter Jordan should be able to hold off the rampant Art Shires from the first base job. Whether he hits or not, Maranville is a standout at second base, where he can out-think the Braves into a lot of ball games.

Now, however, it is a matter of when he will appear in line for the shortstop and third base jobs, if they can hit.

Holland, Hunt Bolster

Outfield.

If they can't, Bill Knothe, Horace Ford, made a free agent by the Cincinnati Reds, and Bill "Rebel" Urbanst will be available for those berths.

Urbanst spent the first of the training season sulking in his Perth Amboy, N. J., barber shop, but President Emil Fuchs stepped in and scared him off to Florida by mentioning the fact that he had been in the bantam tank too much time storing his razors for the summer.

The outfield was good last season and Bob Holland and Arthur Hunt, two of the Coast League's slugs, promised to make it even stronger. Wally Berger and Bob Worthington are both consistent 300 hitters, and Wes Schumacher will be one, if rival pitchers forget to throw him lemons.

Generally speaking, McKechnie seems to have the makings of the best team since his arrival at the wigwag. He would consider his prospects exceptionally bright if he could inculcate his players against what he calls "Braves' Disease."

"This ailment," McKechnie explains, "is a mental rather than physical. Every year since I have had the club, we have had at least one epidemic, generally comes after the Braves have been belting the best pitching in the National League over the lot. Once the germ sets in, however, they can't hit a baseball much farther than they can throw a safe."

Browning Will Defend

Crown Against Lewis

New York, March 19 (U.P.)—Jim Browning, of Verona, Mo., who is recognized in New York State as the world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will defend his title tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden against Ed "Strangler" Lewis, of California, from whom he recently took the crown. It will be the first time meeting. Lewis won the first time, and Browning took the title on the second time.

Cooke's Hit in Sixth Defeats Braves by 3-to-2 Score.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19 (U.P.)—Making it five straight, the New York Yankees today defeated the Boston Braves, 3 to 2.

Dusty Cooke, outfielder, drove in the winning run in the sixth inning. He made it off Fred Frankhouse, who was the first pitcher to go six innings in this area this season.

The Yanks garnered eight hits off Frankhouse and Peltastien, while the Braves collected only three off Peltastien and Jahnowski.

Wood Victor At Radium Springs

Jersey Pro Has 209; Horton Smith Third 4 Shots Behind.

Revolt's Steady Golf Accounts for Second Place Money.

ALBANY, Ga., March 19 (A.P.)—Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., who won three golf tournaments in a row in California some weeks ago, took first place today in the 54-hole Radium Springs Open with a total score of 209.

The victory was worth $300 to Wood, already one of the leading money winners of the winter campaign. His score for the three rounds was 7 under par.

Wood put together two sub-par rounds of 68 and 70 today to add to his 71 yesterday and take the lead from Horton Smith, of Chicago, the pacesetter through the first and second rounds. Smith faltered in the final eighteen holes and finished in third place with 213, 4 shots behind the winner and 1 more than Johnny Revolta, the Menominee, Mich., youngster, whose 212 brought him second place and $200. Smith took $125.

Cooper and MacFarlane

Tied for Fourth.

Harry Cooper, of Chicago, and Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., were tied for fourth with 215. Both were four strokes under the 216 par for the three rounds.

Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., followed with 217. After a 71 in the opening round yesterday, Runyan could do no better than a pair of 73s today.

Charles Yates, of Atlanta, the young Georgia State champion, was low among the amateurs with 225. He was fourth behind the pros. Yates, a 21-year-old, was in the second round, where he ruined his chances. Tony Manero, of Elmford, N. Y., had 230.

After setting a course record of 68 in the first round, Yates faltered in the second round, where he ruined his chances. Tony Manero, of Elmford, N. Y., had 230.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

(Copyright, 1933.)

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

RESULTS obtained with the electric-control of street lighting in Wallingford, Conn., are reported by A. L. Pierce, local general manager, to be wholly satisfactory. The photocell is mounted so as to get the early morning light from the East. It turns the lights on when the natural illumination drops to about 1 1/4-foot-candles and turns them off when daylight is slightly above 1 1/4-foot-candles.

That the sensitivity of the cell is more than adequate is indicated by the experience during a severe thunderstorm, when the lights gave several pronounced "blinks" which were attributed to the response of the cell to the brightness of the lightning flashes, although these might have been prevented by "delay" relays.

One decided advantage of the installation is the ease with which answers can be given to requests from attorneys as to the exact time of lighting street lights on particular occasions involved in litigation. These requests are now answered by the simple statement that the street lights are on whenever natural illumination falls below 1 1/4-foot-candles.

BY WAY of introduction the large played a lover's scene yesterday in the NBC studio," writes James Cannon, in the New York World-Telegram, describing the first commercial broadcast of Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, the President's daughter.

"They ceased and Frank Singler, the announcer, introduced Mrs. Dall, who began a twice-weekly series of talks over WEAF. (These talks are heard on WEAF only and not the network.)

"The President's daughter broadcast from the desk used by Lowell Thomas, Edna St. Vincent Millay, and others. She talked about work and women. Her voice is young, eager and full of quick laughter. Once she said she felt after the talk.

"Mrs. Dall finished her speech, and Mary Lewis, the vice president of Best & Co., took her seat. Mrs. Dall tapped a cigarette on her wrist. She took a match from her bag. She was about to strike it but changed her mind and walked over to the corner farthest away from the microphone, where she lit it, leaning down behind a chair. The mike has sharp, inquisitive ears. The match's scratch might have disturbed the stay-at-homes.

"The President's daughter had spoken too long. Miss Lewis rushed through her talk. There was only time to sign off.

"Which one of us was too long?" Mrs. Dall asked.

"You were a trifle, apologetically explained the announcer.

"How funny," said Mrs. Dall—more to herself.

"She was in a hurry to leave the studio. 'I've got to pick up my flivver,' she said. 'You can park only an hour around here, you know. Wonder if it will be all right. I know the cop. I pulled up to park, and she said, "Sister, you can park here only an hour." I said, "Brother, I'll be out of here in an hour." The cop seemed surprised."

SENATOR PAT HARRISON of Mississippi, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee and director of the successful fight to pass President Roosevelt's $500,000,000 economy bill through the Senate, will analyze that bill in the National Radio Forum.

The official arrival of spring at 2:45 p. m. today will be heralded by a group of Boy Scouts in a special broadcast over WRC.

For the third successive year NBC will broadcast this event from the camp of Nature Study Group, No. 472, Kips Bay Boys Club, Boy Scouts of America, in Palisades Interstate Park on the west bank of the Hudson River.

John P. Medbury will make his debut as a regular feature with the Columbia Revue at 10 p. m. tonight. He will be heard with this program each Monday and Friday evening until the Monday broadcast is advanced to a Sunday spot beginning April 2.

On tonight's program will be Morton Downey, the Eton Boys, Mary Eastman, Jacques Frey and Mario Braggiotti, and an orchestra under direction of Freddie Rich.

Post's Model Home Is Visited by 2,000

More than 2,000 persons have visited The Washington Post model home in Spring Valley.

This same home at 3641 Forty-ninth street northwest is one of the city's interesting places. Many have been delighted with its charming individuality, its pleasing arrangement and substantial construction.

Designed and built by W. C. & A. N. Miller, creators of the beautiful residential subdivisions of Spring Valley and Wesley Heights, the display residence has been opened to the public as a demonstration of the finer art in home building and interior decoration. The latter is by Charles Gailley, Inc. The home boasts of an ultramodern General Electric kitchen, made possible by the cooperation of the National Electric Supply and Potomac Electric Power companies with the exhibitors. The home will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Game Robin Fights Window Reflection

Ten Days' Battle Fails to Dim Determination to Rout Likeness.

Kansas City, March 19 (A.P.)—Weakening slowly after ten days of intermittent shadow boxing, a militaristic cock robin carried on its idea of the battle of the century at a window pane of the office of Dr. E. E. Songer today.

The attack started when the robin, sitting on a telephone wire, noted its reflection in the vine-shaded window. Hitting the glass, it fell back dashed, but renewed the assault with vigor. Excepting time out for sleep and feeding about the yard, it has continued the onslaught since. Dr. Songer said shouts and lowering of the shade distracted its attention only momentarily. A quarrel with a bluejay and owl nearby forgotten, the robin hammered away at the pane today with wings and bill, occasionally dropping to the window ledge to rest.

Eucharistic Congress Planned.

Buenos Aires, March 19 (A.P.)—With a Nation-wide day of prayer, preparations were begun today for celebrating in 1934 the International Eucharistic Congress of the Roman Catholic Church here.

SO YOU'VE TRIED TO DOUBLE CROSS ME ALREADY, EH?

SENT YOU INTO DAY TOWN TO SNITCH US SOME GRUB—AND WHAT DO YOU DO BUT WRITE A POSTAL CARD TO TRACY TELLING HIM WHERE YOU ARE!

SURE I SENT A POSTAL CARD TO TRACY—AND I HOPE HE GETS IT. NO MATTER WHAT YOU DO TO ME, STEVE, I WON'T STAY WITH YOU—I HATE YOU!

I DIDN'T THINK YOU WUZ SMART ENOUGH TO GO IN A POST OFFICE AN' WRITE A POSTAL CARD—YOU PUT ONE OVER ON ME—BUT YOU WON'T GIT BY WIT' IT!

DAT POST CARD WILL NEVER REACH TRACY! I'M GONNA GIT IT AND DESTROY IT IF I HAVE TO ROB DE POST OFFICE AN' BUMP OFF D' POSTMASTER.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS STUDEBAKER PLANS

Explanation Made Minority Group Opposing Merger Caused Receivership.

South Bend, Ind., March 19 (A.P.). In closed conference, officials today discussed future plans for the Studebaker Corporation, pioneer automobile manufacturing concern, which was placed in friendly receivership yesterday.

Petition for receivership was filed by the Edwards Iron Works, Inc., local auto body building company, which had a claim of $6,226. Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick appointed as conservators Paul G. Hoffman and H. S. Vance, vice presidents of the Studebaker concern, and A. G. Bean, president of the White Motor Co. of Cleveland.

Present at the conference of receivers were A. R. Enck, president of the corporation, who arrived from New York City this morning. None of the conferees would make any statement concerning today's discussion.

May Resume Tuesday.

Vance said such a statement would be deferred pending the arrival of Bean from Cleveland. He expressed conviction, however, that the corporation's factories, closed during the banking holiday, would resume production Tuesday.

Receivers issued a statement explaining the receivership action as a result of the merger of the two companies. The statement said that six months ago officials of the two companies agreed on a merger as an economy move and that 95 percent of the White stock was turned in.

In recent months, however, the statement said, three percent of the stockholders threatened litigation unless they were paid for their stock. Studebaker Corporation issued $14,000,000 of notes in connection with the merger.

Minority Stops Wheels.

"As a result of the attitude of the small minority group," the statement said, "assets of the White Company have not yet been merged with those of Studebaker. Furthermore, the terms under which these notes were issued have prevented the corporation from using many of its most valuable assets for credit purposes."

In the present banking situation impossible for Studebaker to secure its customary and normal financial accommodations from its bankers.

Directors of the corporation, as asserted it was in good financial shape, and that White Motor Co. and the Pierce-Arrow Motor Co. corporations controlled by Studebaker, were not involved in the receivership.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 19 (A.P.). The Pierce-Arrow Motor Co.'s operations will be unaffected by the friendly receivership of the Studebaker Corporation, a statement today by Arthur J. Chanter, first vice president and general manager said.

Studebaker's relationship to Pierce-Arrow, he said, is that of a stockholder.

Resolution Asks Veto Of Cullen Beer Bill

A resolution petitioning President Roosevelt to veto the Cullen beer bill and "await the decision of the American people on the issue of repeal or retention of the eighteenth amendment now before the States" was adopted last night by the congregation of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church.

Declaring that the "beer bill passed by Congress to be in spirit and letter a violation of the Constitution," the resolution asserted that "its approval by the President would be a violation of his oath of office."

Man and Wife Injured In Virginia Car Crash

A man and his wife are in serious condition at Emergency Hospital, suffering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident yesterday afternoon at Motts Corner, Va.

Bward Keets, 27, of Barcroft, Va., and his wife, Dorothy, 24, were taken to the hospital by a passing motorist. Mr. Keets' car was struck in the rear, a possible fractured skull and a fractured pelvis. His wife has a possible skull fracture and internal injuries.

Back Roosevelt, Is Plea of Church

A resolution adopted yesterday by the congregation of the Greek Orthodox Church, SS. Constantine and Helen, asked support of all members of the faith to President Roosevelt's administration.

The text said in part: "Resolved, That the congregation recognizes the leadership of our President, urges our communicants throughout our land to lay aside all partisan differences, and join in this recognition and pledges the unanimous support of our membership to the President of the United States in any and all measures consistent with the Constitution and laws of our country, that he may adopt or recommend to meet the existing emergency irrespective of the sacrifice involved and to the same extent as if this Nation were at war, and be it further—

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to His Excellency, the President of the United States, and to His Grace, the Right Rev. Athenagoras, Archbishop of the Greek Orthodox Church in the United States.

BANK "OPERATOR'S" LICENSE.
THE OLD WAY:I want to run a bank.
No experience?
No.

THE NEW WAY:

Application for Permit.

1. Name

2. Address

3. Have you ever operated a bank before?

4. If so, for how many miles?

5. Have you ever been summoned for reckless operating?

6. Has your operator's license ever been revoked or suspended, and if so give circumstances?

7. Have you ever been involved in any major accident? If so give date of the bank holiday?

8. If you have operated a bank previous to this application, did it have an investment affiliate, and how long did it take you to drop it?

9. Do you and the affiliate now speak as you pass?

10. Do you base your capabilities as a banker on any of the following claims:

(a) Three years as a sock manufacturer.

(b) Admitted prominence in the wholesale monkey fur industry.

(c) Reputation as a go-getter.

(d) Good fellowship and a fair goiter.

(Note—If so, do not bother sending in application.)

11. Do you consider honesty a paramount virtue?

12. Do you promise to give reasonable consideration to depositor and not regard him as the Forgotten Man?

13. Can you look a bull market in the face and not get the blind staggers?

14. Are you satisfied that "paper doll interlude" is a better term than "new business era" for a period when everybody is buying common stocks on barbers' tips that they are going to 500?

15. Have you come around to the conclusion, scrapped during the boom years, that the old-fashioned conservative banker who never took wild chances with other people's money was all right, and the fact that he wore side whiskers, chewed peppermint drops, employed a homely stenographer and didn't care much for golf?

16. Do you promise to reverse his memory and be guided by their ethics?

17. Does he now seem a great banker and a splendid citizen rather than the "old fogy" that so many bankers held him to be in the big boom days?

18. Are you ready to admit that directors should submit quarterly tests to see if they are alive?

AWAY BELOW ZERO.

A few more bull markets and stocks will have reached heights to which in 1929 we didn't believe they could sink.

The Man-Who-Was-Neer-To-Play-The-Man-Who-Again was around this morning looking for tips.

MAKING IT UNAMINOUS.

"I wish," said the Defunct Citizen to another, "I have money."

"Listen," said the reply, "too, wish I had my money."

Old Rosie Glasses had a great day yesterday. "I nearly got some money from my bank, the stock I would have liked to buy went up 10 points and the glass of beer I want so much may arrive any month now."

Corner Stone Laid

At Catholic Hall

Idle Congregation Members Give Services to Work Free.

The corner stone of the parish hall and Catholic community center of the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, on Morris road, Anacostia, was laid yesterday afternoon. Father P. M. Schneeweiss being the principal speaker. The hall, which is half-completed, has been erected by colored members of the parish, many unemployed, who have given their time to the project.

James Curtis has served as foreman on the job, and has been assisted especially by Richard Hayes and Henry Harley in molding cement blocks of which the hall is constructed. The project has been encouraged and personally supervised by Father Schneeweiss.

T. P. Wilson served yesterday as master of ceremonies, Julia Brown, as chairman of the entertainment committee, and Montrela Swann, as chairman of the reception committee.

300 STORMY RAIN
PAYING TRIBUTE TO
CARDINAL GIBBONSWreaths Laid at Prelate's
Statue; Congress Member Is Eulogist.

Standing with heads bared in the cold, dreary rain, more than 300 persons from all walks of life stood in front of the bronze statue of James Cardinal Gibbons at Sixteenth street and Park road to pay tribute yesterday afternoon to the first American cardinal in commemoration of the twentieth anniversary of his death.

With the simple dignity of solemn memorial services, virtually all Catholic organizations of the city banded colorful wreaths at the base of the statue, surrounded by a guard of honor of St. John's College cadets and a cordon of Metropolitan and Park police.

Following the laying of wreaths at 3 p. m. the ceremony adjourned to the auditorium of the Shrine for the Sacred Heart for a program of music and eulogy.

Representative Speaks.

Addressing the audience as the principal speaker, Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, eulogized Cardinal Gibbons as one of the greatest humanitarians of the century, a great character and potent force in the life of the Nation. Invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Francis X. Cavanaugh, pastor of the Church of the Assumption. Benediction was given by the Right Rev. Mgr. P. C. Gavan, pastor of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart and at one time secretary to the late cardinal.

The program was opened with the singing of "America" by Mrs. Estelle Sweeney, accompanied by the Holy Comforter Boys Band, directed by the Rev. Joseph P. Denges.

The services were arranged by the Cardinal Gibbons memorial committee under the direction of Francis Anthony McCann, chairman, and William Joseph Boyd and Roland Joseph Hyland. They were sponsored by the Curley Club of Washington.

Donors of Wreaths.

The wreaths were sent by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, presented by Patrick J. Heltigan; Supreme Council, Knights of Columbus, presented by D. J. Callahan, supreme treasurer; the Catholic Daughters of America, presented by Miss Mary Boland, grand regent; the Washington section of the Baltimore Archdiocese, presented by William Joseph Neale, president; the Ladies Auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians, presented by Miss Lillian E. Fay, district president; the Cardinal Gibbons Institute, Ridge, Md., presented by Victor H. Daniel, principal.

Other wreaths came from the Daughters of Isabella, presented by Mrs. Annie Wall, regent; the Ladies Auxiliary, Knights of St. John, presented by Mrs. Mary Burke, district president; the Assumption Girls Club, presented by Miss Catherine Wahler, president; the District of Columbia International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, presented by Miss Mary Albright; the Inter-Veteran Unit Council, Catholic Students Mission Crusade, presented by Miss Mary Louise Hollifield; the District of Columbia Spiritual Council, Catholic University of America, wreath presented by W. Burke Carmody, president; the Curley Club of Washington, presented by Roland Joseph Hyland, president.

Passenger Pilfered Cab
And $4, Driver Avers

George M. Ashton, cab driver, of 870 North street northeast, reported to police that he was assaulted and robbed of his cab and about $4 by a fare yesterday morning near Daniel road and Nebraska avenue northwest. Ashton told police he picked up his fare at Fourteenth street and New York avenue and was ordered to drive to the 6200 block of Nebraska avenue. Upon arrival at Daniel road, Ashton said he was struck on the head several times from behind and then thrown from the cab. The man went through his pockets, took his money and then drove away in his cab, the hacker said.

Colored Democrats
See Unified GroupAllegiance Is Pledged to League at Sessions of Various Units.

Indications that colored members of the Democratic party would effect a unified national organization were apparent when results of conferences during the last week were reported yesterday at a series of meetings held here by segments of the Colored National Democratic League which pledged allegiance to that organization, formerly the Democratic Negro Voters League, to its president, Dr. P. O. Williston, who has headquarters at 1214 Park road northwest.

Impetus to this solidification was given by a conference held last week by a delegation from the league with Postmaster General Parley, headed by Dr. Williston, who has developed a national Democratic organization over a period of years.

John P. Costello, Democratic national committeeman, is said to have indicated to Dr. Williston that District of Columbia patronage, as it relates to colored citizens, should have Williston's sanction.

Hall Furniture Stolen.

Mrs. Lester McMahon, Albee Building, Fifteenth and G streets, reported to police yesterday that furniture valued at $50 had been stolen from a hall outside her apartment yesterday morning. The furniture was taken while she was at church, she said.

CORRECTION

In a story in yesterday's Post describing a raid on an alleged gambling parlor on Connecticut avenue the address of the Highlands Apartments was erroneously given as the place of the raid. The raid was not made at the Highlands Apartments, but at 1631 Connecticut avenue northwest. The Post regrets this error.

Planned Surprise Party; Native of Ohio.

Maybe the excitement of expectation was the cause of stopping the stalwart old heart of Nicholas Kinney, 77-year-old Veterans' Administration employee and former minister, when he sat down in the Sunday school room of the Methodist Protestant Church at First street and Rhode Island avenue after finishing a short talk yesterday morning.

For weeks he had been walking around with a smile on his lips and congratulating his 72-year-old wife, Mrs. Mary Kinney, on the coming date—March 20—when they would celebrate their golden wedding.

A reception had been planned, unknown to him, by his sons and daughters to be held tonight.

While Mr. Kinney was delivering his talk before a small crowd in the Sunday school room, C. Auster Berry, superintendent of the school, was announcing from the pulpit in the church proper, that a surprise reception would be held tonight at the home of Mr. Kinney's son, Donald, at 3812 Beecher street northwest.

Rain Falls to Bar Crowd
At Post's Model Home

Sunday's rainy weather failed to lessen the crowds of visitors to the latest Washington Post model home. This model home is located at 1334 Locust road northwest in the beautiful Northgate subdivision. This most desirable dwelling, built by Paul T. Stone, Inc., and furnished by John P. Ligon, Inc., with draperies by John P. Ligon, Inc., is presented by J. Wesley Buchanan, Inc., realtors, with offices at 1427 I street northwest.

Architecturally and structurally, this distinguished center-hall brick residence is a contribution of unusual merit to the better class homes of the National Capital. It will be open daily and Sunday until 5 p. m. To visit it, drive out Sixteenth street northwest to Locust road, one block north of Kalmia road.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Sunday, March 19—5 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia: Rain Monday and Monday night, probably clearing Tuesday morning; moderate to fresh northwest Tuesday.

For Maryland—Rain in east and rain or sleet in west portion Monday and Monday night, probably ending Tuesday morning, except snow by extreme west portion Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

For Virginia—Rain Monday and Monday night, probably clearing Tuesday morning, colder in west and south portions Tuesday.

The disturbance that was central over western Missouri Saturday night has moved very slowly eastward and it now generally from the southern Lake region and the upper Mississippi Valley southeastward to New Orleans, 30 to 40 inches, and Evansville, Ind., 20 to 30 inches. It has lessened in intensity, but is still a factor in the weather.

Another disturbance is moving inland over southeastern Alaska and the Gulf of Alaska, and is expected to reach the coast of California and Oregon Sunday night and Monday morning, bringing heavy rain and strong winds from the south and southwestward to Nova Scotia, Chesapeake Bay, and the Gulf of Mexico, 20 to 30 inches, and Rapid City, S. Dak., 20 to 30 inches. The temperature has fallen rather generally from the Plains States and the southern Rocky Mountain region eastward to the Atlantic coast and the weather has become much colder from Kansas and western Missouri southward to southern Texas.

CROSS SIGNIFICANCE IS BEING NEGLECTED,
DR. SIZOO DECLARESAsserts Church's Influence
Will Be Felt Only as It Is Exalted.

"The day when the Christian Church exalts the cross it will gain the world and have influence, and the day it ceases, it will cease to have influence," declared the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, preaching yesterday morning on "The Cross Challenge" at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. He said, in part:

"The tragedy of this generation is that we are pushing the cross of Jesus into the discard. We have little sympathy with it. We are talking about the social program. Jesus is being exalted as a reformer and a teacher. But somehow something has gotten out of religion if you don't see in the hands of Christ the prints of nails. You will never understand the meaning of this Lenten time until you understand the cross of Christ. Why is it we are pushing the cross of Jesus into the background? First of all because it demands righteousness. It is the insignia of judgment. It won't let us do what we are inclined and disposed to do. It won't let us alone.

Insignia of Sacrifice.

"A world today that is willing to gamble with the money of others, a world that plays with the arithmetic tables, a world that smiles at graft and laughs at the Ten Commandments—that world doesn't have the cross. The cross is pushed into the background because it is the insignia of judgment.

"Another reason we discard the cross is because it is the insignia of sacrifice. A world only concerned about getting, not giving, hoarding, not sharing—such a world doesn't know Christ and doesn't want the cross. Many today are willing to follow the cross up to the point where it interferes with something they desire.

Dr. Sizoo dwelt on the fact that Jesus was able to win only a few men before His death. He said: "It will always seem strange that he was able to reach in His intimate comradeship so few men, and these so utterly unrepentant, until He went to His cross. Of course, He had His day of glory, popularity and applause, but they were few and short.

Why Cross Was Needed.

"Jesus knew that this was inevitable. He was at no time disillusioned. He did not face a world with a false hope. He went up and down the country teaching, but for all His wisdom and for all His work Jesus knew that the world was not ready for Him. He knew He could never win the world as a teacher. Jesus was known through the villages as one who could heal all kinds of illnesses. He was known for His power exhibited through the miracles He performed. But Jesus of Nazareth knew He could never win the world by teaching, by healing or by power—it was only by the cross His influence could be felt.

"Jesus had a hard time convincing His disciples that was so. They determined that that was not the way to gain the world or win influence. Then came Golgotha and Calvary, and then suddenly these men who did not believe the truth at first became inflamed with a new passion. They went out conquering and to conquer. It has always been so. The history of the Christian Church brings out the fact that when it exalted the cross and pictured a Christ who died to save its mightiest moments.

"Are you willing to face the cross, insignia of judgment? Are you willing to face the cross, insignia of sacrifice? Are you able to drink the cup that I drink? That is Jesus' message to the generation of today."

Part of Drug Store Loot
Is 36 Pints of Whisky

Burglars broke into the drug store of Dr. Alfred T. Bronough, 3401 Fourteenth street northwest, early yesterday and made off with 36 pints of assorted whisky, $6 in change and $100 in cash.

Investigation revealed that entry had been gained through a side window which had been pried open with a jimmy.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Winter weather tends to weaken and wear the mechanical parts of an automobile. With spring just around the corner it is always wise to prepare your car for different weather. Check the motor, steering devices and, above all, brakes, for they suffer worst of all during the winter months.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WITH such a quick succession of "animal pictures" as "The Big Cage," "The King of the Jungle," "The Jungle Killer" and, by a slight stretch, "So This Is Africa," occupying the local screens of late, it is perhaps, the part of ologenarianism, Shaw explains in a "preface" which, with his customary incoherence, follows instead of precedes the story, that he began this work as the sketch of a play he had planned to write in his regular business as a playwright, but evolved the story of the Black Girl in spite of himself and so let it go at that—thus relieving the theater of another stage comedy.

This is perhaps just as well, because in play form "The Adventures of the Black Girl in Her Search for God," like "Too True to Be Good," probably would have been too true to be good!

Revealing a mental and intellectual clarity that is amazing in one on the fringes of ologenarianism, Shaw explains in a "preface" which, with his customary incoherence, follows instead of precedes the story, that he began this work as the sketch of a play he had planned to write in his regular business as a playwright, but evolved the story of the Black Girl in spite of himself and so let it go at that—thus relieving the theater of another stage comedy.

Times being what they are, and everything running behind, sort of, this is probably the inauguration weather just catching up, don't you suppose?

Representative Eicher's
Collie Vanishes Here

"Laddie," pet collie of Representative Edward C. Eicher, of Iowa, has probably decided by now that he is in strange territory.

At home the dog knows his way around town, but coming here with his master, who is serving in the Seventy-third Congress, he is unacquainted with the city. The dog jumped from the car of Mr. Eicher when she parked it at Thirtieth and E streets and has not been seen since.

BY MOTOR ACCIDENT
ON ARLINGTON ROADDriver Held After His Car
Strikes Richard Davis
Near 4-Mile Run.

Richard Davis, 37, of 724 I street southeast, was killed almost instantly yesterday when he was struck by an automobile on the Washington-Richmond highway, and Robert Franklin Whaley, 29 years old, of 1900 S street northwest, is being held in the Arlington County Jail for investigation in connection with the death.

Davis was said to have been struck by Whaley's automobile on the highway near "Four-Mile Run" in Arlington County. He suffered two broken legs, his right leg being almost severed from his body and other injuries. The body was examined by Dr. B. H. Swain, county coroner, and later removed to the C. J. Ives Undertaking parlor in Clarendon.

County police report that Buddy Beavers, of 641 E street southeast, who was with Davis, both walking in the direction of Alexandria, is being held as a witness.

Whaley told police that he was driving in the center lane of traffic in the direction of Alexandria when Davis moved ahead in front of his car. Attempting, as he explained, to avoid striking the man his car skidded and went over the bank approximately 60 feet from where the body landed on the right side of the highway.

Whaley will be given a hearing in county police court today before Judge B. M. Hedrick.

United States Daily
Will Resume Today

The United States Daily will resume publication today with a composite issue, which will be published for every six days of Government action. It was announced yesterday. The issue today will contain the activities of the Government from March 6 through 18.

In addition to the weekly publication, another publication known as the United States Daily's Law Journal will be published weekly, starting March 6, but, according to announcement, was delayed with requests for continued publication.
